DEADLOCK BROKEN

Brazil Deputies Pass On Cabinet To Solve Crisis

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — The Chamber of Deputies approved a Cabinet on Friday selected by Prime Minister Francisco Brochado da Rocha, ending Brazil's 17-day-old political crisis.

The action broke a deadlock between the conservative-dominated Parliament and President Joao Goulart, whose Labor party is in the minority.

The government crisis was considered the primary reason for Thursday's announcement that President Kennedy had postponed the start of his visit to Brazil from July 20 to Nov. 12.

LARGE MARGIN

The 13-man Cabinet was approved by a 130-63 vote. The victory by such a large margin came as a surprise after four days of bickering among political parties.

The appointment of Brochado da Rocha last Monday represented Goulart's third attempt in two weeks to form a new government to deal with Brazil's growing economic troubles, marked recently by food riots that left more than a dozen persons dead.

The new Cabinet is predominantly nonpolitical. Brochado da Rocha is a member of the middle-of-the-road Social Democratic party. His nomination had won overwhelming approval from the chamber Monday.

In presenting his Cabinet choices to the deputies, Brochado da Rocha promised to carry out emergency plans to meet Brazil's economic problems.

He spoke of "short-term solutions" to food shortages, spiraling inflation and agrarian and industrial reform.

Only two of his Cabinet choices are directly affiliated with political parties — Fonso Arinos de Melo Franco, foreign minister; and Joao Mangabeira, minister of mines and energy.

Arinos belongs to the right-of-center National Democratic Union and currently is Brazil's chief delegate to the United Nations.

He served as foreign minister under former President Janio Quadros.

Mangabeira is president of the Brazilian Labor party. He heads the government-owned oil monopoly, Petrobras.

Monroyan Is Jailed For Arson

Authorities Friday afternoon charged a 52 year old Monroean man with arson after he admitted setting fire to his home late Wednesday in an attempt to collect enough insurance money to avert foreclosure.

State Fire Marshall Garland May, who took the confession along with local fire and police officials and Monroe Fire Marshall C. W. Flacy, identified the man as Leonard Herman Kordick. He was placed in parish jail on a warrant through the district attorney's office.

May quoted Kordick as saying he started the blaze at 907 S. 2nd St. in a small closet housing a water heater. He said he piled paper around the heater, turned it up full force and left the house to drive with his wife several blocks down the street and listen for fire sirens.

Certain that an alarm had been turned in, Kordick said he started out of town. Told by neighbors the Kordicks had contemplated a trip to Newellton, police had them intercepted and turned back to Monroe by Winnsboro police.

The blaze caused heavy damage throughout the Kordicks' three-room home, firemen said. Suspicions as to possible arson were aroused when it was found that a quantity of clothing and other personal items were missing from the house.

Subsequent investigation brought out the fact that Kordick was heavily in debt and was faced with the initiation of foreclosure proceedings on his home Thursday, May said.

Dixon Reported Cabinet Choice

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Broadcasting Co. reported Friday night that it had learned President Kennedy would announce Saturday the appointment of James P. Dixon Jr., president of Antioch College at Yellow Springs, Ohio, as the new secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Dixon would succeed Abraham A. Ribicoff, who sent his resignation to Kennedy Thursday night just before his formal announcement as a candidate for the Democratic senate nomination from Connecticut.

Judge Rules Texan Estes Is Bankrupt Attorney Takes Exception, Plans Speedy Appeal

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — U. S. Dist. Judge R. Ewing Thomason declared Texas agricultural promoter Billie Sol Estes bankrupt Friday.

Estes' attorney, John Cofer of Austin, took immediate exception to the ruling and said he would file an appeal at once.

FRAUD CHARGES

Thomason's ruling on Estes' financial status came soon after three men indicted with him in what the government says was a multimillion-dollar fraud pleaded guilty.

The bespectacled Estes, 37, once called the "boy wonder" of West Texas financial circles, claimed he was innocent of the fraud charges.

Entering guilty pleas to five of 29 counts were Coleman McSpadden, 45, Lubbock, Tex.; Harold E. Orr, 31, Amarillo; and Ruel W. Alexander, 36, Amarillo.

All were officers of Superior Manufacturing Co., which figured prominently in accusations that Estes and the other three defrauded lending companies of about $22 million by issuing mortgages secured by fertilizer storage tanks which do not exist.

Attorneys pleaded guilty in behalf of Superior Manufacturing, which also was indicted.

Judge Thomason set no date for sentencing.

All remained free on previous bond—$100,000 for Estes and $25,000 each for the others.

Each could be fined $30,000 and imprisoned for 45 years on the five counts to which they pleaded guilty. However, judges normally do not assess the maximum penalty in multimount cases.

Estes and his codefendants also pleaded innocent Friday to the earlier eight-count indictment charging interstate transportation of fraudulent mortgages.

It was this earlier indictment that sent Estes' financial empire crashing and resulted in state and congressional investigations, including the current Senate probe headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Two anti-Castro Cubans armed with a knife and 12-inch iron pipe sought to attack Cuban Communist leader Blas Roca on a plane here but were seized by police.

The two boarded the plane during a stopover here, but were unable immediately to spot the Communist leader, who was sitting in the tourist section of the Boeing 707. Roca was on the way back to Havana from a Communist party congress in Montevideo, Uruguay.

The two screamed "assassin" at Roca as they were led away. Roca appeared pale and shaken after he was told what happened. But he said, "I wasn't afraid."

The two anti-Castro Cubans identified themselves as members of a Cuban constitutional government-in-exile.

Suit Is Filed In U.S. Court Against Plan Alabama's New Apportionment Move Hit By Challenge

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The mainstay of the Alabama Legislature's newly drafted reapportionment plan was challenged anew Friday in a federal court which may throw out the entire program.

Attorneys for a group of Birmingham residents demanding a louder voice in the lawmaking assembly, which has remained un-reapportioned for 61 years, asked the three-judge court to block a statewide election on a proposed constitutional amendment.

RECONVENE MONDAY

The judges, who three months ago gave the legislature a do-or-die ultimatum on reapportionment, reconvene here Monday to see what has been done.

The suggested change in the state's organic law would give each of the 67 counties a full-time state senator and at the same time reshuffle the House on a population bracket formula. The Senate is made up now of 33 members representing from one to three counties.

Unless the court prohibits the election, the 67-senator amendment will be submitted to the people on Nov. 8, the same day as the general election for state and local offices. If ratified, it will go into effect in 1967.

Along with the measure of a senator for every county, the legislature, nearing the end of a five-week special session, enacted a standby bill designed to assure some realignment of the House and Senate if the constitutional amendment fails. It, too, would take effect after a four-year waiting period.

The 67-senator formula would be used if the federal court and the voters approve it; otherwise, the standby act, reshuffling the legislature somewhat according to population within the present constitutional limits of 106 House members and 33 in the Senate.

Even while the two measures still were pending, the Birmingham residents asked the court for a summary judgment to reapportion the legislature immediately by judicial order even if the bills were enacted.

MCA's recent merger with Decca Records, parent of Universal Pictures, was expected to result in a new giant among film studios.

MCA's recent productions have long dominated the television production field, with such series as "Wagon Train," "Laramie," "Alfred Hitchcock," etc.

The agency end of MCA has handled such performers as Kirk Douglas, Burt Lancaster, Gregory Peck, Marlon Brando, Grace Kelly, Tony Curtis, Shirley MacLaine, Paul Newman, Jack Paar, Jack Benny, Ingrid Bergman, James Stewart, Fred Astaire, Marlene Dietrich, Henry Fonda, Montgomery Clift, Laurence Olivier and Charlton Heston.

Possibility of an antitrust suit against MCA has been rumored in Hollywood since Justice Department agents months ago began a quiet investigation among agency clients and competitors.

U.S. Begins Antitrust Suit On MCA Inc.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The federal government filed its long-rumored antitrust suit Friday against the entertainment industry giant, MCA Inc.

The firm is the largest producer of filmed television shows, operates the largest talent agency and has big plans for movie production.

STRIP TALENT ARM

The civil action asked U.S. District Court to:

1. Strip MCA of its talent arm, which it already had promised to do effective July 18.

2. Compel MCA to divest itself of Decca Records and its subsidiary, Universal Pictures, both acquired recently. It claimed the deal violates the Celler-Kefauver Antimerger Act.

MCA President Lew Wasserman has notified the Screen Actors Guild that it will surrender its agency franchise on or before July 18. The guild had previously notified MCA that it was withdrawing a waiver permitting participation of talent agencies in film production.

MCA's recent merger with Decca Records, parent of Universal Pictures, was expected to result in a new giant among film studios. MCA's recent productions have long dominated the television production field, with such series as "Wagon Train," "Laramie," "Alfred Hitchcock," etc.

Frenchmen Enjoy Their Bastille Day

PARIS (AP) — Frenchmen plunged with typical gusto Saturday into the celebration of their country's national fete, Bastille Day.

The day, the French equivalent of July 4, marks the anniversary of the storming of the Bastille at the beginning of the French Revolution which toppled the monarchy and brought in the First Republic.

As midnight came to the capital hundreds of automobiles were almost bumper to bumper on the broad Avenue des Champs Elysees. Disregarding anti-noise ordinances drivers honked their car horns while firecrackers popped along the sidewalks.

It was the first Bastille Day with France completely at peace since the ill-starred summer of 1939.

On many corners of the Left Bank, street dances started up. But the big celebration was for later in the day.

A military parade down the Champs Elysees in the morning — reviewed by President Charles de Gaulle and a host of notables — will start things off.

At nightfall there will be the traditional big display of fireworks over the Seine, followed by all-night street dancing. Similar fetes are scheduled for towns in the provinces.

With the end of World War II, in 1945, France was plunged into a series of colonial wars in Indochina, Madagascar, and North Africa which ended with Algerian independence early this month.

RECONVENE MONDAY

The judges, who three months ago gave the legislature a do-it-now-or-else ultimatum on reapportionment, reconvene here Monday to see what has been done.

The suggested change in the state's organic law would give each of the 67 counties a full-time state senator and at the same time reshuffle the House on a population bracket formula. The Senate is made up now of 35 members representing from one to three counties.

Unless the court prohibits the election, the 67-senator amendment will be submitted to the people on Nov. 6, the same day as the general election for state and local offices. If ratified, it will go into effect in 1967.

Along with the measure of a senator for every county, the legislature, nearing the end of a five-week special session, enacted a standby bill designed to assure some realignment of the House and Senate if the constitutional amendment fails. It, too, would take effect after a four-year waiting period.

The 67-senator formula would be used if the federal court and the voters approve it; otherwise, the standby act, reshuffling the legislature somewhat according to population within the present constitutional limits of 106 House members and 35 in the Senate.

Even while the two measures still were pending, the Birmingham residents asked the court for a summary judgment to reapportion the legislature immediately by judicial order even if the bills were enacted.

U.S. Explodes 44th Atom Shot At Nevada Site

NEVADA TEST SITE, Nev. (UPI) — The United States Friday set off another underground explosion — 44th in the current Nevada series — and disclosed Army troops would hold mock war games in conjunction with an atmospheric nuclear test.

It will be the first time in five years for troops to hold such exercises, although 19 previous maneuvers have been staged.

The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) at the same time reported delaying at least until Saturday a scheduled low-yield nuclear atmospheric test. The atmospheric test has been postponed for a week on a day-to-day basis because of unfavorable winds.

The AEC said only a small nuclear device was set off underground Friday, the 44th since tests resumed last September. Observers here for the atmospheric test indicated they did not detect the shot.

No Relief Seen By Weatherman

Looks like the weather will continue to furnish the favorite topic of conversation, because no relief is promised from the heat wave — at least through today.

Another high of 97 degrees is forecast today for the Twin City area, with a low of only 74 expected. However, the weatherman does mention "isolated later afternoon and evening thundershowers."

The mercury soared to 97 Friday for the second straight day, matching the high reading recorded thus far this year at Selman Field. Friday's high mark was recorded "between 1 and 2 p.m." A low of 84 was recorded.

U.S. Begins Antitrust Suit On MCA Inc.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The federal government filed its long-remembered antitrust suit Friday against the entertainment industry giant, MCA Inc.

The firm is the largest producer of filmed television shows, operates the largest talent agency and has big plans for movie production.

The civil action asked U.S. District Court to:

1. Strip MCA of its talent arm, which it already had promised to do effective July 18.

2. Compel MCA to divest itself of Decca Records and its subsidiary, Universal Pictures, both acquired recently. It claimed the deal violates the Celler-Kefauver Antimerger Act.

MCA President Lew Wasserman has notified the Screen Actors Guild that it will surrender its agency franchise on or before July 18. The guild had previously notified MCA that it was withdrawing a waiver permitting participation of talent agencies in film production.

MCA's recent merger with Decca Records, parent of Universal Pictures, was expected to result in a new giant among film studios. MCA's revue productions has long dominated the television producing field, with such series as "Wagon Train," "Laramie," "Alfred Hitchcock," etc.

The agency end of MCA has handled such performers as Kirk Douglas, Burt Lancaster, Gregory Peck, Marlon Brando, Grace Kelly, Tony Curtis, Shirley MacLaine, Paul Newman, Jack Paar, Jack Benny, Ingrid Bergman, James Stewart, Fred Astaire, Marlene Dietrich, Henry Fonda, Montgomery Clift, Laurence Olivier and Charlton Heston.

Possibility of an antitrust suit against MCA has been rumored in Hollywood since Justice Department agents months ago began a quiet investigation among agency clients and competitors.

INDIA ISSUES WARNING

Red China Told Fighting Is Near

NEW DELHI, Saturday (UPI) — The Indian government has accused Communist China of establishing nine new military outposts in northern India and warned that continued activity at Ladakh "may create a clash at any moment."

The warning was contained in a protest note to Peking dated last Thursday and released here Friday.

"Aggressive activities... have led in recent weeks to the establishment of a number of new Chinese posts deep inside Indian territory."

OUTPOST HEMMED

It said six of the new outposts were in the Chip Chap region of northern Ladakh, not far from where an Indian outpost reportedly has been hemmed in on three sides by Communist soldiers. Ladakh is in a section of northern Kashmir claimed by both India and China.

A spokesman for the foreign ministry told parliament that if the Chinese troops in Ladakh press forward from their present positions the Indians might have to open fire in self defense.

Not only are Chinese forces now poised in menacing proximity to existing Indian posts in the area, but their incessant aggressive and provocative activities are increasing tension and if not restrained may create a clash at any moment," the note said.

Bush told the Senate he thought his approach would have the support of the nation's doctors, whose association has been battling against President Kennedy's Social Security plan.

Bush's proposal would have used funds collected under the Social Security system to give persons 65 and older an estimated $9 a month each.

ARMY'S DAVY CROCKETT

Atom Mortar Test May Be Upcoming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army apparently will get its first clear system, strongly suggested that the Crockett—an atomic mortar for front-line troops—with a nuclear warhead, and under simulated battle conditions.

That seemed to be the crux of an announcement Friday that some 900 troops of the 4th Infantry Division from Ft. Lewis, Wash., will take part in tactical exercises in conjunction with above-ground nuclear tests in Nevada within a few days.

A joint announcement by the Atomic Energy Commission and the Defense Department said the troops will conduct "conventional artillery firing" with weapons of a maximum 105 mm caliber. At the same time, it added, ground nuclear systems testing will be held.

Drastic Step Is Taken To Save Regime

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan dismissed one-third of his 21-member Cabinet in a dramatic effort Friday to restore the voters' confidence in his Conservative government.

Heading the list of those fired were Chancellor of the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd and Defense Minister Harold Watkinson.

ELECTION SET BACK

A Cabinet reshuffle had been anticipated as a result of by-election setbacks to the ruling Conservative party, but the extent of the changes went far beyond expectations.

Macmillan elevated Home Secretary R. A. Butler to deputy prime minister, a signal that he has chosen his own successor if developments force him out of the Tory leadership.

The policies of both Lloyd and Watkinson have been under constant attack.

Lloyd's pay-freeze program angered wage earners and critics charged he was favoring the rich.

Watkinson ended Britain's military draft and defended the idea of an independent British nuclear weapons program, even in the face of U.S. doubts.

The other Cabinet members dropped by Macmillan:

Viscount Kilmer, 62, lord chancellor; Lord Mills, 72, minister without portfolio; Sir David Eccles, 58, education minister; Dr. Charles Hill, 58, housing minister, and John MacLay, 56, secretary for Scotland.

It was the most drastic reshuffle by the 67-year-old prime minister since he took over from Sir Anthony Eden—now Lord Avon—in January 1957. The changes reduced the average age of the Cabinet membership from 55 to 51 years.

The shakeup took Reginald

Another High Shot Indicated

HONOLULU (AP)—There were indications today the United States would fire a second, high-altitude nuclear shot above Johnston Island next week.

The detonation was expected to be at even higher altitude, although less powerful, than the July 8 thermonuclear blast which lit up the Pacific for thousands of miles and was visible from New Zealand to Hawaii.

Unofficial sources said Friday scientists at Johnston Island, 750 miles southwest of Honolulu, are preparing for preliminary tests next Sunday and Tuesday.

The shot itself probably will follow fairly closely after the tests. Joint Task Force and officials would not comment. They have promised to give four days warning to fliers and mariners.

And, as it would take at least 10 days to repair the launch pad after the July 8 test, this means that the earliest possible firing date would be next Wednesday.

Defense department officials have said one more, and possibly two, more shots would be fired from Johnston Island in the current Pacific series. The original schedule called for three or four tests.

The Johnston Island shots will end the Pacific series. The Christmas Island phase was concluded Thursday midnight, winding up a string of 26 announced, successful tests there.

Davis Vetoes Little Hoover Deadhead Bill

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. Jimmie H. Davis said Friday he vetoed the so-called deadhead bill sponsored by the defunct Little Hoover Commission.

Rep. Jack Dyer, East Baton Rouge, one of three lawmakers who led an unsuccessful fight to save the legislation, commented the veto and events leading to it were "just another example of the (Davis') rotten form of government."

The governor said "numerous errors on page two of this bill render it fatally defective."

"This is borne out," he said, "by the unsuccessful efforts of proponents to clarify and remedy it by way of concurrent resolutions in the Senate and in the House of Representatives."

Dyer issued a statement saying:

"Gov. Davis can give any official reason that he wants to for his vetoing the so-called deadhead bill."

"But the real reason is that he simply cannot afford to permit a publication of all the unclassified state employees. The taxpayers of Louisiana would be demoralized if they knew where some of their money was being squandered," Dyer said.

The anti-deadhead bill and Code of Ethics bill were both good measures and a decent governor would have insisted on their passage," Dyer said.

"Instead Gov. Davis caused his floor leaders to kill the Code of Ethics bill and both good measures and a decent governor would have insisted on their passage," Dyer said.

"He then used every trick in the books to kill a resolution by Rep. Percy Branton of Webster and myself that would have clarified the anti-deadhead bill," Dyer said.

"This is just another example of his rotten form of government now in existence in this state."

One of Davis' House floor leaders won approval of misplaced amendments in the bill which destroyed its language.

Rep. Riskey Triche, Assumption Parish, won approval of an amendment to exempt the listing of unclassified workers from the Public Records Act.

The amendments would have made the listing of unclassified employees of a confidential nature, available only to the department of civil service and the legislature.

But they were placed on page two of the bill, between lines 10 and 11, instead of between the same lines on page three.

Sen. Harold Montgomery, Davyline, waged an unsuccessful fight in the Senate to correct the error, and to clarify the intent of the act to allow individual lawmakers to have access to the list.

In the House Reps. Branton and Dyer won 45-44 approval of a resolution to make similar corrections and clarification.

The resolution was delayed en route to the Senate just before adjournment, according to some reports through the governor's office.

The incident touched off a Senate fight, led by Montgomery, that brought the 1962 session to a crashing end marked by bitter accusations and near fistfights.

The governor's Senate leadership jumped on Montgomery's attempt to save the resolution.

He moved to have the Senate waive the rules and allow an early vote on the resolution before the session's end early Thursday.

The Senate bill originally was sponsored by Sen. B. H. Rogers of Grand Cane, and other members of the Little Hoover Commission.

It picked up the designation as an anti-deadhead bill. Deadheads are persons on the state payroll who do little or no work for their pay.

JFK. Advisers, Cabinet Group Talk Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Friday discussed the nation's economic situation with a group of cabinet members and other advisers.

The President met for about an hour with the group. The White House would not comment on the topics of discussion except to describe the session as "one of the regular meetings" Kennedy has with his economic advisers.

There was one expert from outside the administration at the meeting—Paul Samuelson, an economics professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and an administration consultant from time to time on economic matters.

Samuelson is a strong advocate of an immediate tax cut to ward off any threat of recession.

Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon, Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges and Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg were the cabinet members at the meeting, according to acting White House Press Secretary Andrew T. Hatcher.

bill granting across-the-board pensions for World War I veterans. Passman said the measure, already rejected by the House veterans affairs committee, would cost more than $11 billion and could be the "height of fiscal irresponsibility."

He said he will have no part of a plan now afoot to bypass the veterans committee by circulating a petition to bring the bill directly to the floor. Signatures of half the House members are necessary to bring a measure out in this way.

Passman pointed out the pension would go to anyone who served 90 days or more during World War I, regardless of the veteran's present income or savings.

"That time is long overdue," he said, "for the people's elected representatives to start thinking more seriously of the welfare of America, rather than merely of just the next election."

"The way we are going now," he added, "by yielding to political expediency, we are rapidly wrecking the system of government that has made this country so great and strong and free."

Passman pointed out that already more World War I veterans are eligible for a pension, even without a service-connected disability, if annual income, including social security, does not exceed $3,000.00.

"I supported the legislation," he explained, "and I would support legislation that would increase the amount of both service- and non-service-connected disability cases who are in need. However, to vote for a bill that would pay a pension to hundreds of thousands of veterans who served as long as 90 days in World War I would be an outright gift, given for no other reason than that the veteran served his country. I simply cannot see any reasonable justification for such action."

Congressman Passman explained that the whole bill "treated well and with an open heart" in the matter of pensions. These service-connected, he said, comprise about 15 per cent of this country's expenditures for veterans.

He then used every trick in the books to kill a resolution by Rep. Percy Branton of Webster and myself that would have clarified the anti-deadhead bill," Dyer said.

"This is just another example of his rotten form of government now in existence in this state."

Policemen Find Human's Body In Auto Trunk

TORONTO (UPI) — Police Friday raced to check a report that a car had been driven out of a gasoline station with a body in the trunk.

Within a few minutes, the car was flagged down. Its passengers were a chimney-sweeping crew.

The man in the trunk was a sweeper. One of his co-workers said, "He always travels that way. He gets so dirty we make him sit in there."

The defense began placing witnesses on the stand. They included George Rigdell, a former producer in Tangipahoa Parish but no longer in the dairy business.

When asked why he signed the petition, he said he did not read the petition and did not know its contents. He said he was told it would be good for the dairy industry but he "guessed he jumped over into the wrong pen."

Elvis Blackwell testified he was too busy to read the long petition when it was presented.

He said he never had asked information from board meetings and received no notice of board meetings. Blackwell is a producer.

He also said he did not know how much his milk was sold for and he did not believe it would do any good to complain by himself.

Tommy Dykes, producer from Tangipahoa Parish, testified the petition was explained to him and his name was signed to the petition by his son at his request.

He said he was interested in knowing why members were not getting as much for milk as non-members. He said he was never notified of the annual meeting and had never been to the association's office.

Eaco Brock of Tangipahoa Parish said he signed the petition because he believed too much money was withheld from his pay check. He said he never attended any meetings and never complained about too much deduction because he did not believe it would do any good.

James Brumfield of Tangipahoa Parish testified he signed the petition because he believed too much was being withheld from his check. He said he was a can shipper and he did not complain because he did not know who his board member was and couldn't complain.

Joe Laird of St. Tammany Parish, vice president of the Gulf Milk Association, said there were 32 directors, the annual meetings were open to anyone, and even the board of directors meetings were open to the individual members if they cared to attend.

He testified during the past year a gross business on more than $18 million dollars was received for milk by the association and 95 per cent of this went to producers.

Ribicoff Has Connecticut's Demo Focus

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Almost one thousand delegates gathered Friday night for Connecticut's 1962 Democratic convention with the party spotlight beaming on homecoming Abraham A. Ribicoff.

Ribicoff, who stepped down as secretary of health, education and welfare on the eve of the convention to run for the U.S. Senate nomination, made his return trip to Connecticut politics with the blessing of President Kennedy.

"We need your voice and vote in the halls of Congress," Kennedy said in a letter to the first of his Cabinet members to resign.

The handsome and polished Ribicoff, 52, was expected to win the nomination easily, despite a bitter fight from Congressman-at-Large Frank Kowalski, who also wants to be senator.

But Ribicoff all along has had the backing of Democratic National Chairman John Bailey and other party leaders, even while he refrained from formally announcing his candidacy.

The convention's opening was devoted largely to ceremonial matters, with Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), Senate majority leader, delivering the keynote speech.

Delegates got down to the business of naming their candidates at the windup session Saturday.

Gov. John N. Dempsey, who stepped into the state chief executive shoes when Ribicoff resigned to join President Kennedy's Cabinet in January 1961, will be nominated for re-election as governor.

Ribicoff resigned from the Cabinet and officially entered the U.S. Senate race by means of a televised speech for Connecticut viewers Thursday night.

Ribicoff's letter of resignation and President Kennedy's reply were made public Friday by the White House in Washington.

In his letter, Ribicoff said he wanted the chance to prove the strength of Kennedy's leadership and programs.

The President, accepting Ribicoff's request to resign in order to run for the Senate, said that even one vote in Congress could spell success or failure and that "you can next year cast that vote."

Ribicoff, at a news conference Friday, said he was very optimistic that Kennedy will come to Connecticut in his behalf during the senatorial campaign.

The Tuesday morning session will be devoted to talks by Dr. J. P. Thrasher, New Orleans practitioner; Dr. Charles Walton, New Orleans practitioner; Dr. R. D. Turk, professor in the Department of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A. & M.; Dr. Evans, and Dr. Donovan.

Speakers for the final afternoon session will be Dr. Clark, Dr. Farson and Dr. Brown.

An information clinic will be held the first day of the convention for youths from throughout the state who might be interested in making a career of veterinary science.

The three-day convention will be sponsored jointly by the Association of New Orleans Veterinarians and the LVMA.

Dr. R. E. Omohundro, assistant director (field director) of the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Monday afternoon will discuss the national status of the animal disease eradication program.

Davis Vetoes Little Hoover Deadhead Bill

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. Jimmie H. Davis said Friday he vetoed the so-called deadhead bill sponsored by the defunct Little Hoover Commission.

Rep. Jack Dyer, East Baton Rouge, one of three lawmakers who led an unsuccessful fight to save the legislation, commented the veto and events leading to it were "just another example of his (Davis') rotten form of government."

The governor said "numerous errors on page two of this bill render it fatally defective."

"This is borne out," he said, "by the unsuccessful efforts of proponents to clarify and remedy it by way of concurrent resolutions in the Senate and in the House of representatives."

Dyer issued a statement saying: "Gov. Davis can give any official reason that he wants to for his vetoing the so-called deadhead bill."

"But the real reason is that he simply cannot afford to permit a publication of all the unclassified state employees. The taxpayers of Louisiana would be demoralized if they knew where some of their money was being squandered," Dyer said.

"The anti-deadhead bill and Code of Ethics bill were both good measures and a decent governor would have insisted on their passage," Dyer said.

"Instead Gov. Davis caused his floor leaders to kill the Code of Ethics bill were both good measures and a decent governor would have insisted on their passage," Dyer said.

"He then used every trick in the books to kill a resolution by Rep. Parey Branton of Webster and myself that would have clarified the anti-deadhead bill," Dyer said.

"This is just another example of his rotten form of government now in existence in this state."

One of Davis' House floor leaders won approval of misplaced amendments in the bill which destroyed its language.

Rep. Risley Triche, Assumption Parish, won approval of an amendment to exempt the listing of unclassified workers from the Public Records Act.

The amendments would have made the listing of unclassified employees of a confidential nature, available only to the department of civil service and the legislature.

But they were placed on page two of the bill, between lines 10 and 11, instead of between the same lines on page three.

Sen. Harold Montgomery, Doyline, waged an unsuccessful fight in the Senate to correct the error, and to clarify the intent of the act to allow individual lawmakers to have access to the list.

In the House Reps. Branton and Dyer won 45-44 approval of a resolution to make similar corrections and clarification.

The resolution was delayed en route to the Senate just before adjournment, according to some reports through the governor's office.

The incident touched off a Senate fight, led by Montgomery, that brought the 1962 session to a crashing end marked by bitter accusations and near fistfights.

The governor's Senate leadership jumped on Montgomery's attempt to save the resolution. He moved to have the Senate waive the rules and allow an early vote on the resolution before the session's end early Thursday.

The Senate bill originally was sponsored by Sen. B. H. Rogers of Grand Cane, and other members of the Little Hoover Commission.

It picked up the designation as an anti-deadhead bill. Deadheads are persons on the state payroll who do little or no work for their pay.

IFK, Advisers, Cabinet Group Talk Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Friday discussed the nation's economic situation with a group of cabinet members and other advisers.

The President met for about an hour with the group. The White House would not comment on the topics of discussion except to describe the session as "one of the regular meetings" Kennedy has with his economic advisers.

There was one expert from outside the administration at the meeting—Paul Samuelson, an economics professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and an administration consultant from time to time on economic matters.

Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon, Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges and Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg were the cabinet members at the meeting, according to acting White House Press Secretary Andrew T. Hatcher.

bill granting across-the-board pensions for World War I veterans. Passman said the measure, already rejected by the House veterans affairs committee, would cost more than $11 billion and could be the "height of fiscal irresponsibility."

He said he will have no part of a plan now afoot to bypass the veterans committee by circulating a petition to bring the bill directly to the floor. Signatures of half the House members are necessary to bring a measure out in this way.

Passman pointed out the pension would go to anyone who served 90 days or more during World War I, regardless of the veteran's present income or savings.

"That time is long overdue," he said, "for the people's elected representatives to start thinking more seriously of the welfare of America, rather than merely of just the next election."

"The way we are going now," he added, "by yielding to political expediency, we are rapidly wrecking the system of government that has made this country so great and strong and free."

Passman pointed out that already more than 10 million World War I veterans are eligible for a pension, even without a service-connected disability, if annual income, including social security, does not exceed $3,000.

"I supported the legislation," he explained, "and I would support legislation that would increase the amounts of both service- and non-service-connected disability cases who are in need. However, to vote for a bill that would pay a pension to hundreds of thousands of veterans who served as long as 90 days in World War I would be an outright gift, given for no other reason than that the veteran served his country. I simply cannot see any reasonable justification for such action."

Congressman Passman explained that World War I veterans have, on the whole, been "treated well and with an open heart" in the matter of pensions. These ex-servicemen, he said, comprise about 15 per cent of this country's expenditures for veterans.

Ouachita Parish Cotton, Melon Crops Thriving

Despite the hot, dry weather plaguing the area, agricultural officials report cotton and watermelon crops are thriving in Ouachita Parish.

Ardner Cheshire, associate county agent in charge of farm management in the parish, pointed out that corn is needing rain.

"I don't think the corn can hold out more than another week without rain," Ardner said Friday.

However, he added that pastures and meadows are generally good despite the weather, with considerable haying operations underway.

"Cotton is fruiting up nicely in most areas and the grass is generally under control," he said. "Cotton crops in some fields are ready to lay by. In some fields there are stands of cotton that are wilting badly, with this probably due to the rapid growth when there was plenty of rain and then followed by the sudden shut off of moisture."

Ardner pointed out that watermelons are ripening.

In regard to cotton insects, he said that most farmers have the boll weevils under control as a result of poisoning.

The incident touched off a Senate fight, led by Montgomery, that brought the 1962 session to a crashing end marked by bitter accusations and near fistfights.

Policemen Find Human's Body In Auto Trunk

TORONTO (UPI) — Police Friday raced to check a report that a car had been driven out of a gasoline station with a body in the trunk.

Within a few minutes, the car was flagged down. Its passengers were a chimney-sweeping crew.

Parents Beating Children Causes Many Fatalities

CHICAGO (UPI) — Beatings by parents may cause more deaths among children than leukemia and as many as auto accidents, the American Medical Association (AMA) said Friday.

A nationwide survey reported in a recent issue of the AMA Journal showed physical abuse of children is "a frequent cause of permanent injury or death."

"It is likely that the (so-called) 'battered child syndrome' will be found to be a more frequent cause of death than such well recognized and thoroughly studied diseases as leukemia, cystic fibrosis, and muscular dystrophy," a journal editorial said, "and it may well rank with automobile accidents."

A team of physicians reported that of 302 child-beatings reported by 71 hospitals over a period of one year, 33 of the victims died and 85 suffered permanent brain injury.

The doctors said a survey of 77 district attorneys revealed 447 such cases in a one-year period. Of the 447 children, the survey showed, 45 children died and 29 suffered permanent brain damage.

Witnesses Appear In Milk Suit Friday

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Testimony resumed Friday in the $772,000 suit filed by 66 milk producers against Gulf Milk Association and Fred Medford.

The suit seeks a temporary restraining order against the association and Medford in a dispute over handling charges.

When court opened, attorneys for the plaintiffs sprang a surprise in announcing they were resting their case.

The defense began placing witnesses on the stand. They included George Riggall, a former producer in Tangipahoa Parish but no longer in the dairy business.

When asked why he signed the petition, he said he did not read the petition and did not know its contents. He said he was told it would be good for the dairy industry but he "guessed he jumped over into the wrong pen."

Elvis Blackwell testified he was too busy to read the long petition when it was presented.

He said he never had asked in a recent issue of the AMA Journal showed physical abuse of children is "a frequent cause of permanent injury or death."

Ribicoff Has Connecticut's Demo Focus

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Almost one thousand delegates gathered Friday night for Connecticut's 1962 Democratic convention with the party spotlight beaming on homecoming Abraham A. Ribicoff.

Ribicoff, who stepped down as secretary of health, education and welfare on the eve of the convention to run for the U.S. Senate nomination, made his return trip to Connecticut politics with the blessing of President Kennedy.

"We need your voice and vote in the halls of Congress," Kennedy said in a letter to the first of his Cabinet members to resign.

The handsome and polished Ribicoff, 52, was expected to win the nomination easily, despite a bitter fight from Congressman-at-Large Frank Kowalski, who also wants to be senator.

But Ribicoff all along has had the backing of Democratic National Chairman John Bailey and other party leaders, even while he refrained from formally announcing his candidacy.

The convention's opening was devoted largely to ceremonial matters, with Sen. Mike Mansfield D-Mont., Senate majority leader, delivering the keynote speech.

Delegates got down to the business of naming their candidates at the windup session Saturday.

Gov. John N. Dempsey, who stepped into the state chief executive shoes when Ribicoff resigned to join President Kennedy's Cabinet in January 1961, will be nominated for re-election as governor.

Ribicoff resigned from the U.S. Senate race by means of a televised speech for Connecticut voters Thursday night.

Ribicoff's letter of resignation and President Kennedy's reply were made public Friday by the White House in Washington.

In his letter, Ribicoff said he wanted the chance to prove the strength of Kennedy's leadership and programs.

The President, accepting Ribicoff's request to resign in order to run for the Senate, said that even one vote in Congress could spell success or failure and that "you can next year cast that vote."

Ribicoff, at a news conference Friday, said he was very optimistic that Kennedy will come to Connecticut in his behalf during the senatorial campaign.

New Arrests On Autobahn Concern U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The
United States expressed concern
Friday about reports of increasing arrests by East German Communist police of West Berliners using the Berlin Autobahn.

Washington was informed of these recent incidents by the West Berlin city government, state department spokesman. Lincoln White told a news conference. The highway connects Berlin with West Germany.

"We are looking into this matter in full consultation with our British and French allies," White said.

The United States, he added, is "concerned about any development or activity which in any way affects adversely or jeopardizes the free flow of persons or goods between the Federal Republic and West Berlin."

White was reminded by a reporter that Secretary of State Dean Rusk had been asked about these reported arrests at his news conference Thursday and had said he had no recent information on the matter.

White, obviously prepared for the question to come up again
Friday, first recalled that, "Free access to West Berlin is one of the vital Western interests which must be recognized and preserved in any future agreement on the Berlin issue."

Then, he said West Berlin authorities "have recently called to our attention an apparent increase in the number of West Berliners arrested by Communist
East German police on the Berlin
Autobahn."

White said he had no further details about these incidents or their frequency. They are regarded by State Department experts as part of the harassing tactics of the Communists in the city.

NANCY FOWLE

Maudling from direction of the colonial office to Lloyd's job as head of the treasury.

Peter Thorneycroft, a former chancellor and until Friday aviation minister, moved to the Defense Ministry.

The firing of Lloyd, 57, ended an old Cabinet association with Macmillan. There were traces of nostalgia and some pain in an exchange of letters made public between the two men.

"You have told me that you would like me to resign and this
I willingly do," Lloyd wrote. "I realize that the policies with which I have been associated have been unpopular. On the other hand I believe that they have been right."

After defending those policies
Lloyd ended by thanking Macmillan "for the many personal kindnesses you have shown me."

Lloyd was foreign secretary before moving to the treasury and he was right-hand man to Lord
Avon at the time of the 1956 Suez affair, when Britain and France attacked Egypt. His dismissal apparently ended any personal dream he had of one day becoming prime minister himself.

Macmillan told Lloyd that his "courageous policies at the treasury have always commanded Cabinet support. They will be continued, he said, but added that the Cabinet must be reconstructed
"with a view to the future."

Watkinson's exchange of letters with Macmillan was not published. The former defense minister has claimed many times in recent months that his policies are totally in line with those of the United States and other Atlantic allies. But his assertions have failed to quell widespread criticisms that Britain's armed forces are running down for want of manpower and because of too much reliance on nuclear weapons.

Political reaction in the lobbies of parliament was one of astonishment among all parties over the scope of the shakeup.

The Conservatives said they had expected nothing so sweeping.

Liberal leader Jo Grimond said the government has lost the confidence of the country and it was time for a general election.

Laborites, too, saw the changes as a sign of governmental weakness.

Duncan Sandys will double his role as Commonwealth relations secretary with that of secretary of state for colonies. With more former colonies gaining independence, the two jobs have been overlapping for some time.

Suitor Kills Father, Then Abducts Girl

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—A rejected suitor shot and killed the father of his pretty high school sweetheart late Thursday night, then put the girl into leg irons and abducted her.

"I suppose he's dead," said
Max E. Markham, 20, when officers captured him without resistance in brush along the Spokane River near the Idaho border early Friday morning about two hours after William G. Fowle, 48, was killed.

"Don't shoot, don't shoot. He won't hurt you," said Nancy Fowle, 20, as officers approached the pair. The attractive brunette was unharmed but near hysteria
when rescued by police.

She appeared in a daze, crying and sobbing. "I hope Daddy died fast," when taken to her home where she was placed under section.

Police Chief Clifford Payne said
Markham, released last month from active duty with the Navy
Reserve, admitted firing the shots that killed Fowle when he came to pick up his daughter at the KHQ-TV studio where she worked during the summer as night receptionist.

Markham told officers he put leg irons on the girl as she couldn't run away while he tried to talk to her.

The car Markham was driving contained a submachine gun, carbine, pistol, guerrilla knife and about 30 rounds of ammunition.
All the weapons were ready for use, but Markham was not armed when arrested.

The .45-caliber automatic pistol found in the car contained two bullets, Payne said.

Police were led to the car by Paul Markham, 17, who recalled that his older brother liked to go swimming at the isolated spot about a mile down a twisting road from busy U.S. Highway 10.

Prosecutor John J. Lally, who planned to file charges late Friday, said Markham had received a suspended sentence on an assault charge on the condition he leave the girl and her family alone. He was accused of climbing a ladder and entering the girl's room a year ago. She awoke to find someone sitting on her bed and was struck on the head when she screamed.

The girl's classmates at Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash., said she appeared frightened last semester by mysterious long-distance telephone calls received from Spokane.

Fowle, public relations director for Fidelity Savings & Loan and an active civic leader, had canceled night meetings and speaking engagements recently so he could be home when his daughter was there, friends said. He was also in the habit of picking her up at the end of her night shift at KHQ, on the southern outskirts of Spokane.

Markham and the girl had dated while classmates in high school but friends said they broke up after graduation in 1960. Classmates described Markham as a quite fellow who appeared to adore Nancy.

Although Markham had been warned by Fowle to stay away from his daughter, the youth told police he decided to try and talk to her Thursday night. He told officers he put the weapons and a knapsack full of ammunition in the car about 7 p.m. He later drove to the station and told police he approached with the pistol in his hand when Fowle came out with his daughter.

er of somewhat less than 1,000 tons of TNT.
When the Crockett was unveiled two years ago it was said by the Army to "dwarf in firepower anything we have ever known in the immediate battle line."
Army specialists say the weapon is designed to blast enemy pillboxes, bunkers, troop masses, artillery positions, tank concentrations, command posts, supply dumps and concentrations. It can chew up any of these within 200 to 500 yards of its burst.
The Crocketts have been tested with conventional warheads. But using them with nuclear warheads and integrating this firepower into troop maneuvers is a problem for the Army. The test in Nevada could provide at least a start.
Troops would come out of protected positions after the blast and advance to take advantage of its destruction, using conventional artillery as they move forward.
Presumably most of the 900 troops from Ft. Lewis will be combat men, with a large number of specialists and technicians on hand.
This will not be the first use of troops in nuclear tests. They were deployed in an earlier series in Nevada several years ago, located in slit trenches and in tanks as near as one mile from detonations.
But these tests involved "devices" mounted on steel towers, rather than actual weapons.
The AEC also said it had set off another low-yield nuclear explosion underground at the Nevada test site Friday. This was the 44th announced test in the current series there. Such an explosion indicates a force equal to that of 20,000 tons of TNT.
An above-ground explosion, which has been put off for several days because of weather, was postponed again Friday for the same reason.

New Arrests On Autobahn Concern U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States expressed concern Friday about reports of increasing arrests by East German Communist police of West Berliners using the Berlin Autobahn.

Washington was informed of these recent incidents by the West Berlin city government, state department spokesman Lincoln White told a news conference. The highway connects Berlin with West Germany.

"We are looking into this matter in full consultation with our British and French allies," White said.

The United States, he added, is "concerned about any development or activity which in any way affects adversely or jeopardizes the free flow of persons or goods between the Federal Republic and West Berlin."

White was reminded by a reporter that Secretary of State Dean Rusk had been asked about these reported arrests at his news conference Thursday and had said he had no recent information on the matter.

White, obviously prepared for the question to come up again Friday, first recalled that, "Free access to West Berlin is one of the vital Western interests which must be recognized and preserved in any future agreement on the Berlin issue."

Then, he said West Berlin authorities "have recently called to our attention an apparent increase in the number of West Berliners arrested by Communist East German police on the Berlin Autobahn."

White said he had no further details about these incidents or their frequency. They are regarded as part of the harassing tactics of the Communists in the city.

Drastic Step Is Taken To Save Regime

Maudling from direction of the colonial office to Lloyd's job as head of the treasury.

Peter Thorneycroft, a former chancellor and until Friday aviation minister, moved to the Defense Ministry.

The firing of Lloyd, 57, ended an old Cabinet association with Macmillan. There were traces of nostalgia and some pain in an exchange of letters made public between the two men.

"You have told me that you would like me to resign and this I willingly do," Lloyd wrote. "I realize that the policies with which I have been associated have been unpopular. On the other hand I believe that they have been right."

After defending those policies Lloyd ended by thanking Macmillan "for the many personal kindnesses you have shown me."

Lloyd was foreign secretary before moving to the treasury and he was right-hand man to Lord Avon at the time of the 1956 Suez affair, when Britain and France attacked Egypt. His dismissal apparently ended any personal dream he had of one day becoming prime minister himself.

Macmillan told Lloyd that his "courageous policies at the treasury have always commanded Cabinet support. They will be continued, he said, but added that the Cabinet must be reconstructed "with a view to the future."

Watkinson's exchange of letters with Macmillan was not published. The former defense minister has claimed many times in recent months that his policies are totally in line with those of the United States and other Atlantic allies. But his assertions have failed to quell widespread criticisms that Britain's armed forces are running down for want of manpower and because of too much reliance on nuclear weapons.

Political reaction in the lobbies of parliament was one of astonishment among all parties over the scope of the shakeup.

The Conservatives said they had expected nothing so sweeping.

Liberal leader Jo Grimond said the government has lost the confidence of the country and it was time for a general election.

Laborites, too, saw the changes as a sign of governmental weakness.

Duncan Sandys will double his role as Commonwealth relations secretary with that of secretary of state for colonies. With more former colonies gaining independence, the two jobs have been overlapping for some time.

Suitor Kills Father, Then Abducts Girl

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—A rejected suitor shot and killed the father of his pretty high school sweetheart late Thursday night, then put the girl into leg irons and abducted her.

"I suppose he's dead," said Max E. Markham, 20, when officers captured him without resistance in brush along the Spokane River near the Idaho border early Friday morning about two hours after William G. Fowle, 48, was killed.

"Don't shoot, don't shoot. He won't hurt you," said Nancy Fowle, 20, as officers approached the pair. The attractive brunette was unharmed but near hysteria when rescued by police.

She appeared in a daze, crying and sobbing, "I hope Daddy died fast," when taken to her home where she was placed under sedation.

Police Chief Clifford Payne said Markham, released last month from active duty with the Navy Reserve, admitted firing the shots that killed Fowle when he came to pick up his daughter at the KHQ-TV studio where she worked during the summer as night receptionist.

Markham told officers he put leg irons on the girl so she couldn't run away while he tried to talk to her.

The car Markham was driving contained a submachine gun, carbine, pistol, guerrilla knife and about 30 rounds of ammunition. All the weapons were ready for use, but Markham was not armed when arrested.

Who Is Mad Now?

"We're not letting the government tell us we have to be satisfied with a simple gain."

These words were from a spokesman for the International Machinists and were quoted under a Los Angeles dateline. They point up the determination with which union negotiators in the aerospace industry currently are pressing demands for pay and fringe benefit gains in new two-year contracts. The I.A.M. and the United Auto Workers, both A.F.L.-C.I.O. affiliates, are the two major unions that bargain for some 400,000 aerospace employees.

When the steel industry announced price increases which would have done nothing more than make things cost a little more, President Kennedy was said to have gone into a white-faced fury. He not only said some ugly things about businessmen but immediately threatened the steel firms with various kinds of government reprisals, which included income tax investigations and other harassments, if they did not rescind the increases.

Now the situation regarding the International Association of Machinists is far worse. They not only want wage and benefit increases which would bring about inflation, for which the steel companies were so severely scored, but they threaten to strike and to upset the aerospace program, which may actually be vital to the survival of this country.

How mad is President Kennedy, now that the union is saying it won't let the government tell it what to do? He is confronted by a situation which could be far worse than the steel price increase and by a defiance not shown by the steel companies, yet he seems to have far less difficulty in controlling the temper which before caused his face to turn white. The fact is, he figures he can't afford to get as mad this time because of the several hundred thousand votes that might be involved.

The Wall Street Journal, which views any situation as matter-of-factly as any publication that can be found, had this to say in part:

"... The prospect for an early settlement is not promising. Both companies and unions acknowledge that little progress has been made in negotiations so far. The unions already have set a strike for July 23 if an agreement has not been reached by then.

"The companies which would be struck include Lockheed Aircraft Corp., North American Aviation, Inc., Douglas Aircraft Co., Convair division of General Dynamics Corp., Aerojet-General Corp., a subsidiary of General Tire and Rubber Co. and Ryan Aeronautical Corp.

"The situation represents one of the most significant challenges to President Kennedy's policy of wage-price restraint since the abortive attempt in mid-April of leading steel companies to increase prices.

"The crux of the issue in the aerospace dispute is the discrepancy in pay between the aerospace workers and the employees in the auto and steel industries. ... Says the I.A.M. spokesman: 'We're demanding a catch-up raise before we even begin to talk about a three per cent wage hike.'

Actually, this means the I.A.M. is seeking two raises at one time. What would President Kennedy say if steel were to propose one increase to be followed immediately by another?

Illogically, in view of Kennedy's position on steel price increases, the Kennedy administration has indicated wage increases of no more than three per cent a year would not be considered inflationary.

Yet, anyone with any knowledge of economics would know that no firm could survive long if it were to grant three per cent wage increases each year and were not allowed to increase prices.

The government is likely to become an important third party in the aerospace negotiations. President Kennedy is said to be under some pressure to act as tough with the unions in this case as he did with the steel companies.

The government, using the taxpayers' money, buys about 90 per cent of the aerospace industry's products. In the current year the government expects to spend $17.3 billion with the industry, up from $15.3 billion in the year ended June 30.

Since he doesn't want to offend the unions because of their votes, the president might say, "Oh, well let the taxpayers pay it." This would be in line with his recent position that a balanced budget, or fiscal solvency, is something that only conservatives dream about.

Schlesinger And Marx

The nation's No. 1 member of Americans for Democrats Action, an extreme leftist group, is Arthur Schlesinger, now a chief advisor to President Kennedy.

Human Events, conservative paper devoted to the preservation of free enterprise, free speech, the rights of the individual and human dignity, quoted Schlesinger as saying in a 1947 article that:

"There seems no inherent obstacle to the gradual advance of socialism in the United States through a series of New Deals."

In that widely-circulated article, Schlesinger said that Karl Marx had made one tactical error. Marx thought the capitalist forces would use force to stop socialism. Therefore, said Marx, violent revolution would be necessary. Schlesinger asserted that recent history has proved that Marx "enormously overestimated the political courage and will of the capitalists." He continued by saying that capitalism has displayed "far more cowardice" than Marx anticipated.

What can we think of the president of the United States when he has such a man as a principal adviser? Schlesinger has refused to repudiate his 1947 declaration and he is a principal spokesman for the A.D.A.

Oddly, for a president who still professes at times to believe in human liberties and human rights, President Kennedy has some 30-odd members of the A.D.A. in high places in his administration.

No Democratic candidate should be permitted to equivocate on the vital A.D.A. issue. Radical candidates for congress and the legislatures should be forced to accept the onus of being pro-A.D.A. or come out in frank repudiation of A.D.A. — which means rejection of the New Frontier and the Kennedy administration.

Kennedy Pushing Tax Cuts

Treasury Experts Busy Preparing Number Of Proposals Under His Direction To Slash Levies

Treasury experts are now busily preparing a number of proposals designed to slash personal and business taxes this year.

This unannounced drafting is being done on direct orders of President Kennedy.

The exact nature and extent of the multi-billion dollar tax reduction and the timing of its submission to Congress are still undetermined. Under present plans, this decision will be made by the end of the month.

These far-reaching questions have been the principal purpose of those frequent mystery-shrouded meetings between the President and Treasury Secretary Dillon.

Another significant tip-off on what is underway behind the scenes was the Senate Finance Committee's laying aside the House-passed tax bill to take up the trade liberalization measure.

The House passed this tax bill (with the hotly controversial withholding provision on interest and dividends) nearly four months ago, and the Finance Committee was expected to vote on it by the middle of this month. Instead, the measure was suddenly sidetracked until the trade bill was disposed of.

Committee insiders say two reasons were behind this legislative juggling:

(1) To give the President additional time to make up his mind about a tax cut.

(2) To enable the House-passed tax bill to be used as the vehicle for enacting a slash in personal and business taxes.

That is, amendments for this purpose would be written into the House measure by the Senate.

The revised legislation would then go back to the House for its concurrence — thus avoiding the necessity of starting from scratch in the House Ways and Means Committee with an entirely new tax bill.

WHAT'S IN THE WIND — The various tax reductions being drafted by the Treasury experts cover a wide range. Each is being accompanied by a detailed estimate of the "cost" in curtailed revenue.

In the President's private discussions, he has indicated he wants to limit this year's tax cuts to an overall total of not more than $5 billion.

For this reason he favors confining the slashes to personal taxes.

Corporation tax reduction would be put off until next year. It is the President's contention business already is certain to get a big tax cut this year in the revised depreciation schedule that will shortly be announced by the Treasury.

Under these new regulations, business will get tax relief of from $1 billion to $1.5 billion.

Personal tax cuts most favored by Treasury insiders would reduce the maximum surtax from 91 to 88 per cent, and the minimum surtax from 20 to 17 per cent. This would have the effect of slashing individual rates by 3 points in all brackets.

Estimated saving to taxpayers would be $5 billion to $7 billion.

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., has recommended a different proposal to both the President and Secretary Dillon. Under Humphrey's plan, both personal and business taxes would be cut 2 points across the board — for an estimated overall tax saving of $5 billion this year.

The President is under mounting pressure for an immediate tax cut.

With few exceptions, that is being strongly urged by Democratic state and local leaders coming to Washington for strategy talks. They are telling the President and other party chiefs that sentiment in their sections is overwhelming for a tax slash.

Less openly but quite emphatically some of them are bluntly warning there is growing disapproval of a "Kennedy dynasty."

Midwesterners particularly are stressing this. They are saying the heavily-financed senatorial candidacy of the President's 30-year-old brother "Ted" is causing much head-shaking among Democrats as well as Republicans.

One prominent Ohio Democratic leader sent a conference into roars of laughter with the following caustic conundrum:

"What do Laos and the U. S. have in common? Answer: Three principles."

POLITICALS — President Kennedy will definitely make a "non-political" trip through the West in August. He will concentrate on four states — Idaho, Utah, Colorado and California. In each he will make at least one major speech dedicating a federal project — and incidentally take occasion to boost Democratic state and congressional candidates.

In California, he will probably speak both in the north and south. Timing of this significant tour is still being worked out.

The White House itself is dishing out some 6,000 so-called "summer jobs" in government agencies in the Capital. Usually, the agencies handle these "temporary" jobs, but this time all applicants are being deferred directly to the White House. When a member of Congress or some other politico wants one for a constituent, he no longer can arrange that directly with the agency. Instead, he is referred to the White House, which then handles the matter as a personal favor from the President. The intent of this new system is obvious: To put members of Congress in the President's debt, and to win for him the goodwill of the students and other lucky job winners.

Sharpest retort to Senator William Proxmire, D-Wis., when he demanded a $200 million slash in medical research funds of the world-famed National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., came from a Republican — Senator Margaret Chase Smith, Me. A member of the Appropriations Subcommittee that considered the NIH budget, Mrs. Smith blithely told Proxmire, "While I certainly agree with the Senator from Wisconsin that we must start curtailing federal expenses, at the same time, I ask: Why should we begin with medical research, when a little extra money might be used to such good purpose in the case of a breakthrough in the many grievous ailments afflicting mankind?" Proxmire made no reply.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator From Arizona

True economic stagnation results when people begin to retrench. This is an important thing to remember in the present debate over business confidence and government attitudes.

I've seen this happen during periods of recession in the retail business with which I am intimately acquainted. It works something like this:

A woman will come into the store and admire a dress. She may even try it on and spend considerable time talking about it with the saleswoman. But eventually she will decide not to buy it because her husband has been complaining about the business outlook.

You might eventually find out that the husband's business is holding up fine, that his income has not diminished, that his obligations have not grown — but that his views were based on the performance of a declining stock market.

If you take the case of this woman and multiply it many times in many parts of the country, you find the kind of caution and consumer reluctance upon which recession feeds.

Thus, we see that it isn't particularly important what the market plunge actually means in the context of strict economics. Nor is it especially important what the President, or his advisors or the members of Congress think it means. What is important is what the public generally — the man on the street and his wife, the consuming population of America — thinks it means. For if they adopt the general view that a plunging stock market means something is wrong which might affect their future, their reaction will be one of caution and retrenchment. They will stop buying, and they will stop investing.

This is what has been happening in recent weeks.

And there is not an accurate way of knowing what the government's action in the steel price dispute has meant to the American economy in terms of canceled contracts, delayed expansion projects and deferred purchasing. But it stands to reason that we haven't yet felt the full impact of that ill-advised burst of Presidential temper and what followed it.

I believe the President made a grave mistake when he used the cocked and loaded pistol of government power on a single industry. And I believe he compounded that mistake in his speech at Yale when he virtually told the business community that he wouldn't hesitate to use that pistol against it if he is drawn into what he termed "angry argument" with one section of society.

The big job today is to again develop a climate which will encourage capital investment and consumer buying; that will deepen the faith of the American people in the future of the free-enterprise system.

The investor must have reasonable assurance of a fair return on his money or he won't put it up. He'll just leave it idle on deposit. And when he does this, his money does nothing to enhance economic growth. It does nothing to ease the persistent and nagging problem of unemployment. It does nothing to correct our unfavorable balance of international payments. It does nothing to ease the high rate of business failures which currently plague the economy.

I suggest that the President and the administration are not helpless in the present situation. There are many things they can do — sound things that will encourage American businessmen and investors to look to the future with confidence and faith.

But to do these things, the President must rid himself of the radical economic theories of men who believe that present conditions are too sophisticated to allow for balanced budgets, reduced expenditures and payments on the national debt. He must understand that sound business practices are what businessmen live by and that they cannot take encouragement from patently unsound government policies.

In other words, the President can have a new, enlightened and confident relationship with business — but only if he earns it.

How do you stand, sir?

Quickie Tax Cut

Across-Board Slash For Individuals, Corporations Needed

A tax reduction that would cut our taxes now, in 1962, must be simple — a "quickie," in short. Otherwise, it couldn't get through Congress at this session.

It must be an across-the-board cut for individuals and it must cut corporation taxes too. Otherwise, it wouldn't provide sufficient stimulation to individual and business spending to give our economy the forward thrust it is daily more obvious that it needs.

It must be a truly substantial reduction, leaving enough extra billions in the pockets of individuals and the cash registers of businessmen to do the job. Otherwise it could fail to provide the spur to our economy, and the power of tax policy as a weapon to influence the economy's trends might be discredited for years.

It must be timed right so that an already prepared Congress can get at the bill as soon as the President proposes it and passage can be relatively smooth. Otherwise, it might get lost in Congress' labyrinth, with most unfortunate political as well as economic consequences.

It must be passed on the basis that it will be replaced in 1963 by a sweeping overhaul of our tax system. Otherwise, the chances for significant reform of our burdensome tax structure might be badly set back.

Finally, it must be made clear to all Americans that against today's soggy economic background, tax reduction and big federal budget deficits are not going to set off a new inflation spiral and that our foreign creditors aren't afraid that it will. The sophisticated Central Bankers and financiers of Europe have assured our top officials that they thoroughly approve a tax cut to strengthen our economy and as long as we stick to relatively orthodox monetary (credit and interest rate) policies while we're running our big deficits, they'll not attempt any massive withdrawals of the dollar balances they have in our country.

Can a clean, simple, straightforward broad tax cut be put through before this Congress adjourns? Yes.

Should it be put through? Yes! Will it be put through? That depends on whether today's mix of Congressmen — with their widely assorted economic — financial, political viewpoints — can be pulled together into a majority that will vote the cut because they understand that the longer this economy slides along as it is, the harder will be the job of reviving it.

Although President Kennedy is waiting for more statistics before he proposes a tax cut, he's also undoubtedly delaying a move until the trade bill is law and he's sure testing Congressional sentiment too. He's too politically shrewd to propose this sort of bill without being certain it'll pass. Incidentally, as the business figures come out this month, they'll enhance the case for a tax reduction. The economy has been flattening, is even slipping in some vital areas now. And there's no new stimulant on the horizon except this one — a tax slash.

What form might a quickie cut take? Fitting the requirements of simplicity, size and breadth could be any number of combinations.

For instance, individual tax rates could be cut three points in each bracket — dropping the top rate from 91 to 88 per cent and the bottom from 20 to 17 per cent. Each point cuts taxes $2 billion a year, so this would amount to an annual slash of $6 billion. The corporation rate also could be cut three points from 52 to 49 per cent, saving businessmen $1.6 billion. The total slash would be $7.6 billion. And in individual terms — for a married couple with two children, an income of $10,000 a year, assuming tax deductions equal to 10 per cent of the income — the three point rate reduction would save almost $200.

Or while individual rates were cut three points, the corporation rate might be returned to its pre-Korean level of 47 per cent, saving businessmen $2.6 billion a year. The total slash then would be $8.6 billion.

Or while the corporation rate was cut to 47 per cent, individuals might be allowed a straight 10 per cent tax reduction — meaning your weekly withholding tax would be reduced 10 per cent. This would cut taxes $7.2 billion on a yearly basis.

There are differences in impact — as an illustration, the rate cut would favor the lower income brackets while the 10 per cent cut would favor the upper brackets — and there are many simple plans too.

The point is to get a quickie, temporary tax slash through in time to add vigor to our economy now — and pave the way for the big overhaul in 1963.

Wave Advances On Dominican

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A threatening Easterly wave — the kind that sometimes turn into devastating hurricanes while you wait — moved toward the Dominican Republic Friday with indications it would fizzle.

The U.S. Weather Bureau described the wave as moderate and containing winds up to 25 knots. No intensification was expected, the bureau said.

The Navy hurricane hunters, the airman who dip into hurricane eyes for a close look, have been watching the weather formation since it developed yesterday 1,500 miles to the southeast of Miami.

TV Actor Gets 60-Day Sentence On Dope Count

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Billy Gray, who portrayed a teen-age son of the Anderson family in the "Father Knows Best" television series, drew a 60-day sentence Friday for marijuana possession.

Superior Court Judge Edward R. Brand also placed Gray, 31, on probation for three years.

Gray will serve the sentence in a road camp or honor farm rather than in jail.

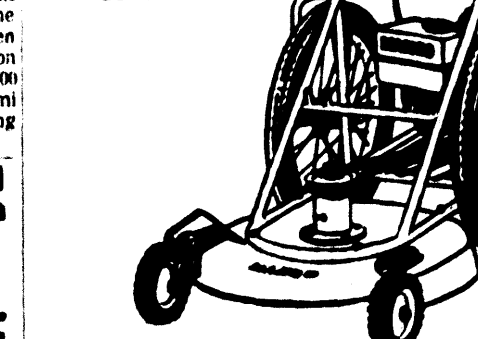

He told the court in a probation application that he was the product of a broken home and has been on his own since he was 16. Gray said he has been unemployed since 1959.

High school classmates introduced him to marijuana, the actor said, and he averaged a couple of cigarettes a week for a couple of years but quit after his arrest March 25.

Arresting officers said they found marijuana in his car.

Sir Winston Beats Back His Infection

LONDON (AP) — Doctors reported Friday that Sir Winston Churchill has beaten back a bronchial infection which threatened his recovery from a fractured left thigh.

His condition was so improved that a spokesman at Middlesex hospital said there were no plans to issue any further medical bulletins until Monday.

But, he added, "Sir Winston is by no means out of the woods and will still require careful nursing."

The medical bulletin Friday afternoon said the 76-year-old wartime prime minister had a comfortable night and that his temperature—up Thursday—had returned to normal. It added his coughing also had subsided.

There had been some fear the bronchial infection might develop into pneumonia, always a hazard in a man of Sir Winston's age and bulk when immobilized with injury. But antibiotics apparently squelched the infection.

Lady Churchill disclosed to newsmen after her regular mid-day visit to the hospital that the stitches inserted after an operation on the injured thigh June 29 were removed Friday morning.

The leg was cut open for the insertion of a steel pin to hold the fracture—near the hip—together.

Sir Winston suffered the injury in a fall at a Monte Carlo hotel June 28.

BUT NO REAL ZIP

Economy Is Still Setting Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Department of Labor expert, detailing employment figures Friday, said the economy was still setting records in June "but with no real zip."

Seymour Wolfbein, manpower chief in the department, was asked at a news conference about the possibility of a recession.

"The figures so far, I think, do not portend a recession," he replied.

The over-all job figures for June, released last week, showed that employment in the month rose to a new record of 69,530,000, which was 1.3 million over the previous month. Unemployment also rose to 4,663,000 million, or 744,000 over the previous month.

If the unemployment rate remains at its current level, Wolfbein predicted, joblessness would be reduced to about 3.2 million by October, normally the year's low point for unemployment.

Elaborating on the June figures, Wolfbein made these observations:

—Factory employment rose to a record 16.8 million. The average work week in factories was 40.6 hours, one-tenth of an hour longer than in May. However, the gain was smaller than usual for the season.

—Average weekly earnings of factory workers reached a new high of $97.68, or 23 cents above the previous month and 94 higher than June a year ago.

—A weak demand for steel caused a drop in employment and hours of work in that industry. However, in the auto industry, biggest user of steel, sales were running at the second highest rate in history.

Eventually, auto producers must use up their steel stocks and reorder, and if auto sales remain strong, "there certainly will have to be an improvement in steel."

—About 70 per cent of the teenagers seeking jobs found work, more than in the preceding four years. But the employment rate for adult men went up from 4.4 per cent to 4.7 per cent.

Guerrillas Pour Into S. Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Thousands of Communist guerrillas are entering South Viet Nam from Laos "like water through a sieve," a U.S. civilian observer said Friday.

He said government troops fighting the Communist Viet Cong rebels already have felt the extra punch of the reinforcements from Laos.

The observer, who asked not to be identified, was briefed by a U.S. intelligence adviser in the central highlands north of Saigon, scene of the infiltration and operations area of the Vietnamese 22nd Division.

"The intelligence estimate is that in the whole 22nd Division zone, 2,500 to 3,000 well-armed Viet Cong guerrillas have crossed the border in the last five weeks," he said. The fighting in Laos stopped five weeks ago.

He said he was told at an intelligence briefing that "roughly in the last month, we feel the Viet Cong have been streaming like water through a sieve across the border from Laos into South Viet Nam."

U. S. Army and Marine corps helicopters flew Vietnamese infantrymen into battle on the Mekong River delta south of Saigon in the third straight day of heavy fighting.

There was no immediate report of casualties.

The sources said Thursday airborne operation against the guerrillas in another area killed 16 Viet Cong. Another 41 were captured, along with some weapons.

But guerrilla attacks in the central highlands have been increasing since the infiltration from Laos began, the U.S. observer said.

"We expect many battalion-size attacks," a Vietnamese officer said. "The purpose will be to reduce the area of government control" in the central highlands.

'BUT NO REAL ZIP'

Economy Is Still Setting Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Department of Labor expert, detailing employment figures Friday, said the economy was still setting records in June "but with no real zip."

Seymour Wolfbein, manpower chief in the department, was asked at a news conference about the possibility of a recession.

"The figures so far, I think, do not portend a recession," he replied.

The over-all job figures for June, released last week, showed that employment in the month rose to a new record of 69,539,000, which was 1.3 million over the previous month. Unemployment also rose to 4,463,000, or 744,000 over the previous month.

If the unemployment rate remains at its current level, Wolfbein predicted, joblessness would be reduced to about 3.2 million by October, normally the year's low point for unemployment.

Elaborating on the June figures, Wolfbein made these observations:

—Factory employment rose to a record 16.8 million. The average work week in factories was 40.6 hours, one-tenth of an hour longer than in May. However, the gain was smaller than usual for the season.

—Average weekly earnings of factory workers reached a new high of $97.03, or 23 cents above the previous month and $4 higher than June a year ago.

—A weak demand for steel caused a drop in employment and hours of work in that industry. However, in the auto industry, biggest user of steel, sales were running at the second highest rate in history.

Eventually, auto producers must use up their steel stocks and reorder, and if auto sales remain strong, "there certainly will have to be an improvement in steel."

—About 70 per cent of the teenagers seeking jobs found work, more than in the preceding four years. But the employment rate for adult men went up from 4.4 per cent to 4.7 per cent.

THE CIVIL WAR

By HENRY T. AKERS
United Press International
When military qualities John Pope may have possessed, they were not one of them. The West where he had won a couple of victories, Major General Pope took command of President Lincoln's brand new Army of Virginia with misgivings and reluctance and promptly robbed everybody the wrong way.

"It became apparent to me at once," Pope wrote later, "that the duty assigned to me was in the nature of a barren hope, and my position was further embarrassed by the fact that I was called from another army and a different field duty to command an army of which the corps commanders were all my seniors in rank."

Pope's selection in the spring of 1862 was Lincoln's decision, apparently made without consultation with the War Department. Lincoln had known Pope's father in Illinois and Pope himself had accompanied Lincoln to Washington for the inauguration as a sort of bodyguard.

NEW GENERAL
This new army commander from the West was 40 years old and a West Pointer of the class of 1842, graduating in the upper fourth of his group.

"Pope was a thickset man," Col. George H. Gordon of the 2nd Massachusetts Infantry wrote, "of an unpleasant expression, about 50 (sic) years of age, average height, thick bushy whiskers and wearing spectacles."

"There was no reserve about General Pope, he 'let out' in course with such vigor that if words had been missiles our army would never have failed for want of ammunition. . . (his) freedom of speech infected his command. Swearing became an epidemic. The newspapers laughed at Pope and dubbed him 'five-cent Pope.'"

Pope arrived in Washington in June 1862 to take over the new army made up of three corps commanded by Maj. Gen. Irwin McDowell, the least of First Bull Run (Manassas); Maj. Gen. John C. Fremont, who had been recalled from Missouri; and Maj. Gen. Nathaniel P. Banks, a politician general from Massachusetts who had been recalled from the front.

Pope promptly refused to serve under Pope, his junior, and asked to be relieved. The Army just as promptly complied, and that was the end of Fremont's military career in the Civil War.

Troops making up the new Army of Virginia had been out of the Shenandoah Valley by Jackson. McDowell's corps, scattered from Manassas to Fredericksburg, moved westward to consolidate with the other troops, except for one division which was left in Fredericksburg, too far away to be effective.

This concentration, Pope hoped, could move south toward Charlottesville and Gordonsville, Va., which lay on the railroad connecting Richmond and the Valley.

The proposed troop movement came at the same time Lee's and McClellan's armies were fighting the Seven Days' battle east of Richmond and was designed to force the Confederates to detach troops to meet it. The Valley was safe, for the time being at least, as Jackson's troops had been removed to Richmond.

Lee paid little attention to Pope's troop movements until the Seven Days' fighting was over and he had McClellan's army pinned down but not conquered. Then he sent Jackson to Gordonsville to watch Pope, dividing his army as he frequently would in the face of superior forces.

McClellan still had about 55,000 men and Pope's army numbered about 40,000. Lee had about 70,000 men, altogether.

CAUTIONS
Lee, however, currently reckoned that the cautious McClellan would not attack again without reinforcements.

McClellan spent all of July 1862 bombarding Washington for more men and promising if reinforced he still could take Richmond. He estimated he would need "much over rather than under one hundred thousand men."

Any such reinforcement was out of the question. Even if Pope's whole army went to the Peninsula it would be less than half the force McClellan wanted. That also would have opened Washington to a quick march by Jackson.

Lincoln went to the Peninsula July 8 to see for himself. Clamor in the north for the removal of McClellan was growing.

McClellan greeted Lincoln with another of his remarkable documents, this time a long letter outlining what he thought the war aims of the North should be.

The key paragraph read: "It shall not be a war looking to the subjugation of the people of any state in any event. It should not be at all a war upon population, but against armed forces and political organization. Neither confiscation of property, territorial executions of persons, territorial organizations of states, or forcible abolition of slavery, should be contemplated for a moment."

Lincoln read this lecture of the major general telling him how to run the country without comment then — or ever.

McClellan said in his memoirs 25 years later that the President "coldly refrained" from even mentioning the letter.

Confederate paper money deteriorated rapidly in value during the Civil War. By 1863 it was worth about 33 cents on the dollar but by the end of the war the rate was 1,200 to the dollar.

Twenty-nine horses were shot from under Confederate Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest during the Civil War but he survived to found the Ku Klux Klan.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

BASEMENT QUARTERS
An Elmhurst, Ill., woman has a point. She writes, "Most folks over 50 firmly believe the play hours spent in the basement rooms are a direct cause of muscular aches, rheumatism, arthritis, colds, cramps, and varicose veins. These rooms usually are 4 to 5 feet below ground level, the walls are painted or paneled, and the floors are made of tile or cement."

"Additional heat is supplied by a fireplace or room heater. Are these claims about aches and pains old time fears or will a basement recreation room ruin the health of the house owner eventually?"

I assume our reader is concerned about dampness, the hard floors, and the temperature. Standing too long on a hard floor may aggravate varicose veins but won't cause them; the fault lies in an inherent weakness of the vein wall.

So far as colds are concerned, these infections are caught from others and are not acquired by working in a basement rumpus room. Dampness may aggravate rheumatism and arthritis but the wear and tear of 50 or more years of using our joints is a more logical culprit.

But there is more to this story. Older persons, especially those who lead sedentary existence, who work hard in the basement workshop, are likely to suffer from muscular cramps that evening or aching the next day. Standing on a hard floor for hours in worn out shoes strain the arches, whereas working in a steepled position plays havoc with the back. Sitting for long periods, watching TV or playing cards, also strain the lower back and affects circulation to the lower extremities.

Dust and cigaret smoke irritate the throat of some persons. The same can be said of molds found so often in old buildings. In addition, faulty gas appliances may give off carbon monoxide; they should be tested regularly.

Let's sum it up by saying it is not the basement but the age and activity that counts. Dehumidifiers and exhaust fans correct most of the unpleasant aspects of basement quarters.

Intertrigo is a form of chapping and monilia refers to a fungus. One form of monilia intertrigo occurs on the webs between the fingers in housewives, bartenders, and others who keep their hands in water a good part of the day or evening.

VIRGINIA NATIONAL FOREST Explosives Strewn By Army Exercise

STAUNTON, Va. (AP) — The Army has flown a 20-man unit to the George Washington National Forest to clean up explosives left behind by troops of the 62nd Airborne Division after antiquerrilla exercises last week.

The cleanup unit was requested from Ft. Bragg, N.C., Thursday by Augusta County Sheriff John E. Kent after two persons had been reported injured in the explosions of a booby trap and a blank M1 rifle shell.

The sheriff and rangers in the national forest said the booby traps, which were described as small phosphorous grenades, and the rifle shells were left all over the place by the 3,000 troops who left last weekend after the practice operation.

A west Augusta man was burned by one of the grenades, Kent said, and his car was destroyed when he removed the grenade from his garage and detonated it while examining it in the automobile.

In addition, Michael Kalfus, 10, Riverton, N.J., was hospitalized in nearby Rockingham County Thursday night after he was injured in the explosion of one of the rifle shells. Authorities said the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Kalfus of Riverton, picked up the rifle shell, tossed it in a campfire and was struck by a metal fragment when it exploded.

Kent said he set off one of the phosphorous booby traps at the site of the Staunton city incinerator Thursday night and the detonation was "equal to a stick of dynamite."

The sheriff said the booby traps

were found taped to bushes, trees, and fence posts in the forest and in outlying areas. He said blank M1 rifle ammunition was picked up by residents in the mountainous area of eastern Augusta County—enough to fill three one-gallon cans.

The counter guerrilla exercise was conducted last week in the national forest to test the ability to army aviation to support such an operation in mountainous terrain.

The Valley was safe, for the time being at least, as Jackson's troops had been removed to Richmond.

Lee paid little attention to Pope's troop movements until the Seven Days' fighting was over and he had McClellan's army pinned down but not conquered. Then he sent Jackson to Gordonsville to watch Pope, dividing his army as he frequently would in the face of superior forces.

McClellan still had about 85,000 men and Pope's army numbered about 40,000. Lee had about 70,000 men, altogether.

CAUTIOUS

Lee, however, currently reckoned that the cautious McClellan would not attack again without reinforcements.

McClellan spent all of July 1862 bombarding Washington for more men and promising if reinforced he still could take Richmond. He estimated he would need "much over rather than under one hundred thousand men."

Any such reinforcement was out of the question. Even if Pope's whole army went to the Peninsula it would be less than half the force McClellan wanted. That also would have opened Washington to a quick march by Jackson.

Lincoln went to the Peninsula July 8 to see for himself. Clamor in the north for the removal of McClellan was growing.

McClellan greeted Lincoln with another of his remarkable documents, this time a long letter outlining what he thought the war aims of the North should be.

The key paragraph read: "It shall not be a war looking to the subjugation of the people of any state in any event. It should not be at all a war upon population, but against armed forces and political organization. Neither confiscation of property, political executions of persons, territorial organizations of states, or forcible abolition of slavery, should be contemplated for a moment."

Lincoln read this lecture of the major general telling him how to run the country without comment then -- or ever.

McClellan said in his memoirs 25 years later that the President "coldly refrained" from even mentioning the letter.

Confederate paper money deteriorated rapidly in value during the Civil War. By 1863 it was worth about 33 cents on the dollar but by the end of the war the rate was 1.200 to the dollar.

Twenty-nine horses were shot from under Confederate Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest during the Civil War but he survived to found the Ku Klux Klan.

VIRGINIA NATIONAL FOREST Explosives Strewn By Army Exercise

STAUNTON, Va. (AP) — The Army has flown a 20-man unit to the George Washington National Forest to clean up explosives left behind by troops of the 82nd Airborne Division after antiguerrilla exercises last week.

The cleanup unit was requested from Ft. Bragg, N.C., Thursday by Augusta County Sheriff John E. Kent after two persons had been reported injured in the explosions of a booby trap and a blank M1 rifle shell.

The sheriff and rangers in the national forest said the booby traps, which were described as small phosphorus grenades, and the rifle shells were left all over the place by the 2,000 troops who left last weekend after the practice operation.

A west Augusta man was burned by one of the grenades, Kent said, and his car was destroyed when he removed the grenade from his gatepost and detonated it while examining it in the automobile.

In addition, Michael Kalfus, 10, Riverton, N.J., was hospitalized in nearby Rockingham County Thursday night after he was injured in the explosion of one of the rifle shells. Authorities said the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Kalfus of Riverton, picked up the rifle shell, tossed it in a campfire and was struck by a metal fragment when it exploded.

Kent said he set off one of the phosphorus booby traps at the site of the Staunton city incinerator Thursday and that the detonation was "equal to a stick of dynamite."

The sheriff said the booby traps

were found taped to bushes, trees, and fence posts in the forest and in outlying areas. He said blank M1 rifle ammunition was picked up by residents in the mountainous area of eastern Augusta County—enough to fill three one-gallon cans.

The antiguerrilla exercise was conducted last week in the national forest to test the ability of army aviation to support such an operation in mountainous terrain.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

BASEMENT QUARTERS

An Elmhurst, Ill., woman has a point. She writes, "Most folks over 50 firmly believe the play hours spent in the basement rooms are a direct cause of muscular aches, rheumatism, arthritis, colds, cramps, and varicose veins. These rooms usually are 4 to 8 feet below ground level, the walls are painted or paneled, and the floors are made of tile or cement."

"Additional heat is supplied by a fireplace or room heater. Are these claims about aches and pains old time fears or will a basement recreation room ruin the health of the house owner eventually?"

I assume our reader is concerned about dampness, the hard floors, and the temperature. Standing too long on a hard floor may aggravate varicose veins but won't cause them; the fault lies in an inherent weakness of the vein wall.

So far as colds are concerned, these infections are caught from others and are not acquired by working in a basement rumpus room. Dampness may aggravate rheumatism and arthritis but the wear and tear of 50 or more years of using our joints is a more logical culprit.

But there is more to this story. Older persons, especially those who lead sedentary existence, who work hard in the basement workshop, are likely to suffer from muscular cramps that evening or aching the next day. Standing on a hard floor for hours in worn out shoes strain the arches, whereas working in a stooped position plays havoc with the back. Sitting for long periods, watching TV or playing cards, also strain the lower back and affects circulation to the lower extremities.

Dust and cigaret smoke irritate the throat of some persons. The same can be said of molds found so often in old buildings. In addition, faulty gas appliances may give off carbon monoxide; they should be tested regularly.

Let's sum it up by saying it is not the basement but the age and activity that counts. Dehumidifiers and exhaust fans correct most of the unpleasant aspects of basement quarters.

SKIN FUNGUS

K. P. writes: What is meant by monilial intertrigo? My very old medical book doesn't mention it.

REPLY

Intertrigo is a form of chapping and monilia refers to a fungus. One form of monilial intertrigo occurs on the webs between the fingers in housewives, bartenders, and others who keep their hands in water a good part of the day or evening.

Palmer Retains British Open Title With Record 276 Total

Finishes Six Shots Ahead Of 2nd Man

Tron, Scotland (AP) — Arnold Palmer shot 12 birdies in two magnificent rounds of golf Friday and retained his British Open championship with a record 276 — a whopping six shots in front of his nearest rival.

"I've never played four rounds of golf like these in my whole life," the U.S. Masters champion from Latrobe, Pa., said afterward.

Kel Nagle, 41-year-old Australian, who edged Palmer by one stroke in the 1960 British Open, was second with 282.

It was a case of records all the way.

day for Palmer. He had a record of 67 in the morning over the 7,045-yard par 36-72 Old Troon course. His total of 71-69-67-69-276 was two shots better than any previous total in this 102-year-old championship. And his winning margin of six shots equaled the previous record.

The latest man to win the British title by six shots was Walter Hagen, another famous American, who whipped Johnny Farrell by six shots in 1929 at Muirfield in Scotland.

Nagle, as rugged a scrapper as they come, finished with 71-71-70-282. Then came Phil Rodgers, La Jolla, Calif., with 75-70-72-289. Brian Huggett of England also was on the same mark with 75-71-74-69-289.

Bob Charles, the left-handed hitter from New Zealand, was next with 75-70-70-290.

Ruston Rally Nips Tough Farmerville

RUSTON (Special) — Pitcher Donald Reeves barked in the winning run as Ruston came from behind with a two-run rally in the seventh inning to nip a tenacious Farmerville nine 5-4 in the final game of the regular Junior League season here Friday.

Reeves, entering the seventh with a 4-3 lead, faced only four men.

Richard Storms opened the inning with a single. Jerry Traylor walked. And both men advanced on a wild pitch, before George Stone bunted Storms home with the tying mark. Then Traylor followed him, scoring on Reeves' bunt.

The win boosted Ruston's final regular season record to 11-5 and dropped last place Farmerville to 1-15.

But it was no easy victory. Ruston went in front 2-0 in the second inning only to have Farmerville catch up to 2-1 in the third and go in front 3-2 in the fifth.

Emile Beats Dupas, Holds Welter Title

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Champion Emile Griffith shook off the spectre of his tragic fight with Benny Paret Friday night and retained his world welterweight title by a unanimous decision in 15 rounds against Ralph Dupas of New Orleans.

The 23-year-old New Yorker by way of the Virgin Islands, had all he could handle in the surprising performance of the underrated 26-year-old Dupas.

But Griffith erased any doubts about the outcome when he caught Dupas with a solid right to the jaw and had him wobble and almost down under a barrage of blows as the crowd of 5,169 went into a frenzy in the final round.

The champion weighed 145 1/2 and Dupas 145 1/2.

If Griffith carried any memories of his fight with Paret last March 24 in New York—the night he regained the title and knocked out Paret, who died 10 days later—it was not evident from the opening seconds.

It was obvious that Griffith intended to hold back nothing and he went all out for the full distance.

Cut Yankees Slim Margin Even Closer

By CHARLES MAHER
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Right-hander Ken McBride, who hasn't lost since April, scored his eighth straight victory Friday night as the Los Angeles Angels knocked off the first-place New York Yankees 5-2 before 53,591.

The loss left the Yankees three percentage points ahead of second-place Cleveland and only a half game in front of the third-place Angels. Only eight percentage points separate the three teams.

Angel outfielder Leon Wagner, who leads the majors in home runs, slammed his 26th with a man aboard in the fifth, but it was a third-inning single by Lee Thomas that brought in the decisive second and third runs.

McBride (9-3) was touched for 12 hits. But only two of them went for extra bases. The Yankees stranded 11 runners.

The crowd was the largest in the brief history of the new Chavez Ravine Stadium. The largest previous turnout here was 52,564, for the Dodgers' opening-day game with Cincinnati.

The Angels got to loser Ralph Terry (11-8) for one run in the first. Albie Pearson opened with a single, took third on a single by Billy Moran and scored when Bob Rodgers grounded out.

With one out in the Angel third, Moran and Wagner singled and both advanced on a deep fly by Rodgers. They scored when Thomas bounced a single up the middle.

The Yankees got their first run in the fifth. Clete Boyer singled, took second on a single by Terry and scored on a single by Tom Tresh. In the New York sixth, Mickey Mantle singled, moved up a base on a walk, took third on a wild pitch and scored on an infield single by Boyer.

Monroe Nips Bastrop 2-1 In Last Tilt

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

Brown-Rivers-Scogin scored two runs in the third inning Friday night on a past ball and a sacrifice fly to gain a one run lead over Bastrop, then held the visitors scoreless for three more innings to win their last game of American Legion season play, 2-1.

The loss pushed Bastrop into a tie with Bernice for third place with a 7-9 record. Monroe finished on top of the four-team league with a 14-2 mark.

Monroe leftfielder Charlie Van Zile scored an unearned run in the second with one out when Bastrop catcher Arthur DeFee over threw third base trying to pick off Van Zile. Gary Futch, who moved from second to third on the play tagged up and scored on the next play — shortstop Joe Canal's long fly ball.

The unearned run proved to be the fatal one for the Bastrop nine who failed to score again after racking up one in the first. Bastrop threatened several times but couldn't get past third.

Mike Mack and Joe Zorro combined to win the season's final game. Mack went three frames with Zorro taking over for three more. Bastrop's Rickey Head went the full distance and suffered his first loss of the season.

Bastrop jumped off to a one run lead in the third stanza only to lose out in the third inning's past ball and sacrifice.

Bastrop's Larry Senn singled in the first to drive in Russell Montgomery from third with one away. Montgomery, the tilt's first batter, drew a walk off starter Mack.

Sikes, Ahn Meet In Finals Today

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Hung Soo Ahn, a slight but tenacious golfer from Hawaii, won a tense, 1-up decision over Wayne T. Breck of Scottsdale, Ariz., Friday to reach the finals of the 37th annual U.S. Public Links Championships against defending champion Dick Sikes.

The 22-year-old Sikes recovered from a shaky start to set down Warren E. Strout, a test engineer from Speedway, Ind., 4-18-fogger on No. 18 for another bird to gain a 1-up edge at the intermission.

Ahn, a wiry 132-pounder, led by 5-up early in the afternoon round of the 36-hole semifinals over suburban Tonawanda's 6,697-yard, par 71 course. Then Breck slashed it to zero with a burst of birdies.

But Hung Soo, who looked like he was nearing the end of his rope, suddenly laid a 100-yard fairway trap shot stiff to the pin on the 15th for an easy birdie. On the 18th, Breck's last gasp putt from 4 feet away just missed.

Sikes had to stage a second nine comeback to gain his half-way 2-up advantage over Strout. The slim Arkansas gained the first advantage when he chipped the green for an eagle on the 477-yard fourth hole to best Strout's birdie.

Strout came right back to win the fifth with another birdie on a 12-foot putt. The Indiana engineer took the lead for the first time on the seventh with a par when Sikes was short with a chip and bogied the hole.

Strout turned two under par with his 33, but Sikes was only a stroke back.

On the back nine, Sikes evened the match on the 12th with a bird, running down a 30-foot putt. The match remained even until

Dodgers Edge Mets; Expand League Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Ron Fairly's home run leading off the ninth inning broke a 4-4 tie Friday night brought Los Angeles a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets and expanded the Dodgers' National League lead to 1½ games.

The Dodgers, who have now won 11 of 12 games with the Mets this season, picked up a full game over second-place San Francisco, which lost to Philadelphia 3-2.

The Dodgers' victory went to right-hander Don Drysdale, the major leagues' winningest pitcher. He allowed only seven hits in go-

Phillies Rookie Defeats Giants, 3-2

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Rookie Dennis Bennett pitched a masterful five-hitter Friday night as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the San Francisco Giants, 3-2 before 18,693 spectators.

Bennett, a 22-year-old left-hander from Yerba, Calif., went all the way for his third triumph. He yielded a home run to Chuck Hillier in the fifth inning and the Giants used three hits in the ninth for their second run.

Except for the third inning, when the Phillies scored all their runs, left-hander Billy O'Dell was almost as efficient for the Giants in his eighth mound loss.

All his troubles cropped up in one big cluster. Sammy White led off the third for the Phillies with a scratch hit down the third base line. Bob Wine singled to right and Bennett beat out a bunt to load the bases with nobody out. O'Dell got Tony Taylor on a force play grounder to the plate, and John Callison popped out. But Ted Savage smashed a single through the middle to score two runs. Roy Sievers followed with another single to bring in the third score.

The Giants stirred up a rally at the end. Harvey Kuenn tripled to right and scored as Jim Davenport beat out a bunt. But Willie Mays hit into a double play and Bob Nieman's pinch single went to waste.

Wright Takes Three Stroke Lead In PGA

By DAVE O'HARA

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mickey Wright, the top money winner on the Ladies PGA golf tour, equaled par for the second straight day and took a three-stroke lead with 140 Friday at the halfway mark of the $10,000 Milwaukee Women's Open.

Miss Wright, a pro since 1954 although only 27, went out in one-over-par 36 but mastered the back nine with a 34 despite a bogey on the last hole for her 70 on the tricky 6,135-yard Tuckaway Country Club course.

Deadlocked three strokes off the pace were veteran Mary Lena Faulk and 21-year-old Shirley Englehorn, the former Idaho, Utah and Oregon Open champion. Miss Faulk added a 71 to her opening 72 while Miss Englehorn matched 72 after a first round 73.

Miss Wright and Miss Englehorn were the only members in the field to equal regulation figures on the narrow fairways and rolling greens on the second day of the 72-hole test.

Barbara Romack, who shared the first round lead with Miss Wright, slipped to a 75 and a tie at 145 with Judy Kimball and Jo Ann Prentice. Kathy Cornelius next with 75-72-147, one stroke ahead of golf's grand old lady, Patty Berg, who had a 73 to go with her first round 75.

The 44-year-old Miss Berg, The Associated Press woman athlete of the year in 1938, 1943 and 1955, had a tremendous round despite a self-imposed two-stroke penalty and failure of her putter four times within 6 feet.

Miss Berg penalized herself on the sixth hole and took a double bogey 5 when she could not remember whether she had placed her ball at the original marking before putting successfully from 3 feet.

Her playing partners, Carol Mann and Lucille Wardell, claimed they did not see any infraction, but Miss Berg insisted on the penalty on the grounds that "when in doubt a player must take the blame."

Fairly's eighth homer, into the upper right field stands off loser Alvin Jackson (4-10), climaxed an uphill fight for the Dodgers, who had to make up a three-run deficit after the Mets' Felix Mantilla stroked a homer with two mates aboard in the first.

Los Angeles got one back in the second on singles by Frank Howard and Fairly and a ground out, and tied it in the third when Willie Davis tripled inonerun and scored on an error.

Youths Get Rude Shock From Reds

MOSCOW (AP)—A group of Western youths, used to free-wheeling ban-the-bomb demonstrations in their home countries, got a rude shock when they tried one in Red Square Friday. Soviet security police seized their banners.

The stillborn demonstration came as the Soviet news agency Tass, in another in a series of East-West statements on nuclear tests, claimed a moral right for Russia to be the last to hold such tests because the United States started the nuclear arms race in World War II.

Two dozen young Westerners, ignoring warnings that they would be deported if they went through with a planned demonstration beneath the Kremlin walls, assembled in Red Square Friday morning. They were not molested until they tried to unfurl their banners. Then the police cracked down swiftly.

The Russian toughness shook some of the youths.

"I had not expected this. I thought they would talk to us," said Wayne Mills, 28, Saratoga, Calif., graduate student at Brandeis University in Boston.

Most of the other demonstrators were British and Scandinavians.

Philip Seed, 32, a British social worker, said the group had offered to give up earlier plans to demonstrate in front of the American Embassy if they could assemble silently in Red Square. This was refused, he said, and the deportation threat was made.

Whether deportation would be carried out was not known, but in any case the Soviet-sponsored Peace Congress the would-be demonstrators were attending in the Kremlin ends Saturday.

The Soviet leader of the congress, Auker Alexander Korneichuk, was quoted as having told leaders of the demonstration "The congress was held here under the condition that there would be free speech inside the hall but no demonstrations outside."

Youths Get Rude Shock From Reds

MOSCOW (AP)—A group of Western youths, used to free-wheeling ban-the-bomb demonstrations in their home countries, got a rude shock when they tried one in Red Square Friday. Soviet security police seized their banners.

The stillborn demonstration came as the Soviet news agency Tass, in another in a series of East-West statements on nuclear tests, claimed a moral right for Russia to be the last to hold such tests because the United States started the nuclear arms race in World War II.

Two-dozen young Westerners, ignoring warnings that they would be deported if they went through with a planned demonstration beneath the Kremlin walls, assembled in Red Square Friday morning. They were not molested until they tried to unfurl their banners. Then the police cracked down swiftly.

The Russian toughness shook some of the youths.

"I had not expected this. I thought they would talk to us," said Wayne Mills, 28, Saratoga, Calif., graduate student at Brandeis University in Boston.

Most of the other demonstrators were British and Scandinavians.

Philip Seed, 32, a British social worker, said the group had offered to give up earlier plans to demonstrate in front of the American Embassy if they could assemble silently in Red Square. This was refused, he said, and the deportation threat was made.

Whether deportation would be carried out was not known, but in any case the Soviet-sponsored Peace Congress the would-be demonstrators were attending in the Kremlin ends Saturday.

The Soviet leader of the congress, Author Alexander Korneichuk, was quoted as having told leaders of the demonstration "The congress was held here under the condition that there would be free speech inside the hall but no demonstrations outside."

Figures Back For Fall Welcomed Fashion Future

By FLORENCE de SANTIS
Fall fashions have three moods. One is all conscious of the figure. One is lean and pared - down. A second is wrapped, full - skirted and dashing. The third is natural, with bias cut or seamed emphasis, following the figure with fluid ease.

The three moods present enough choice for every figure type. The slender will like the natural look, which shows off the entire figure. For the tailored type, the spare look will appeal. And for the many who like to show off a waistline, are less sure of their hips, the second mood, with its waist emphasis and fuller skirts, will be the choice.

In all three moods, top emphasis is the accent. Natural fit shift dresses have scarves muffling their necklines. Wrapped waist dresses have batwing sleeve bolsters. Lean suits have dashing stoles, fur muffs or cowboy scarves.

Foamy fabrics, thick as eider-down, light as a feather cue the general fall fabric picture. In coats, colorful, softer tweeds, brushed wools, boucle looped wools, soft mohairs are favored.

For day dresses butter - soft flannels, tissue crepes and tissue wools make the new fluid silhouettes. Evening fabrics use the glimmer of dulled satin, the shimmer of puffed brocades, the lovely glow of colorful matelasse, also a puffed fabric.

In general, fabrics have a three-dimensional look, flat surfaces appearing only when crepe, tulle or wool or chiffon is used. Ribbed wool and silk ottoman, plush velvet and ribbon lace carry the three - dimensional message.

So well liked is the important fabric surface that wools come into evening use. Soft flannels, and lacy mohairs are used for evening gowns, often with satin evening coats over them.

CLOTHES DRYER
While dryer-drying is quick and effective for towels, it is desirable to dry dish towels out of doors occasionally - preferably on a breezy day and in bright sunshine. This helps to fluff and also to "sweeten" them.

MISS MARCIA DAVIS of Jackson, Miss., bride-elect of John J. Guerriero Jr., of Monroe, was honored with a luncheon at the Rendezvous Tuesday, July 10, by Mrs. Paul Keller Sr., and daughters Mrs. Jack Caplis, and Mrs. J. R. Phillips. Cruse Home Scene For Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Cruse, recently hosted a dinner party in their home on Roselawn honoring Miss Tommie Sue Lowery and Danny Sampson. The young couple will be married in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alton E. Calhoun, 108 Oak Drive, West Monroe, at 7 p.m. on August 30, with Rev. H. L. Sampson, father of the prospective groom officiating.

The dining table, covered by a white linen cloth, held as its centerpiece a miniature bride and groom encircled with spring flowers. The honored guests were presented with a gift of silver. Miss Lowery chose from her trousseau a model of green cotton batiste, and white accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

The guest list included the honored couple, the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Alton E. Calhoun, and Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Sampson.

RECIPE FOR WHITE CLOTHES
No amount of bleaching, detergent or scrubbing will cover up soil left in clothes. For sparkling white clothes the washer water should be hot. The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association recommends that you set the control on your gas water heater at 150 degrees on wash day. Modern gas water heaters are designed to give adequate hot water for laundry without reducing the supply for other household needs.

Area Engineers Are Registered

NEW ORLEANS, La. (Special)—At the last meeting of the Louisiana State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors, which was held here on July 10, four Monroe area professional engineers were granted registration.

They were Lyle W. Ferguson of Monroe, mechanical; Freddie R. Hall of Monroe, chemical; Thomas M. Sayre Jr. of Rayville, electrical; and Albert H. Davis of Junction City, Ark., civil.

ROMAN NIGHTS are made gayer for the modern Cleopatra in this drawstring-hooded shirt for in-out wear over a variety of pants. Draping easily when worn down for a flared collar effect, this paley print variation by Pantino also creates a ruff effect when hood is up and drawstrings tightened. Sleeves are long with tucked flare at the wrist. Shirt has full button-front.

HINTS FROM Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: When you mention painting in your column and with four children painting has become my middle name — not out of choice but necessity.

I slip on an old brushcoat or housecoat over my clothes. It protects them and YOU. With gloves and a little cold cream on my face I have eliminated scrubbing with anything.

Purchase a cheap plastic tablecloth, and use this instead of newspapers on your floor. It's in one piece and there's no shuffling of papers and you can see where you dropped.

I roll on ALL paint and then stroke with a brush. This will use a little more paint but the time saved is worth it. It's terrific. I use this method on cupboards in the kitchen.

The necessity of a good brush cannot be overemphasized — do take care of it.

DEAR HELOISE: Lately I have watched women hanging out clothes. I am amazed how much energy they waste. They have all the clothes in the same pan yet they hang all of the towels in one place, washcloths in another washcloths, etc.

This is all well and good but the women walk their legs off! What difference does it make if the pants hang next to the washcloths? They all get mixed up bringing them in anyway.

I either separate mine as they come out of the washer or hang them as they are stacked in the pan. Then I separate them as I fold them, sitting down. It's much less time and energy consuming.

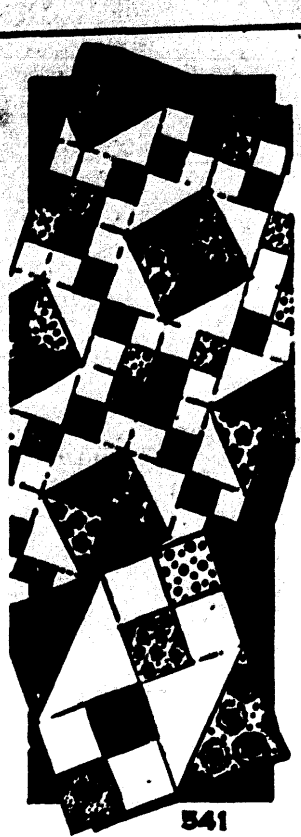

DEAR HELOISE: Did you ever hear of drying salad greens (lettuce, watercress, etc.) in your washing machine?

I have done this for years. It sounds crazy but try it. It's wonderful. Wash the greens well, shake out as much water as you can and place them in small heaps in a clean dish towel (about one head per). Fold the ends across loosely, place in the washer and set the control for the final "spin-dry" cycle.

They do not get mangled and they will stay in the dish towel. They come out nice and dry. I store mine in a gallon-size plastic freezer canister. They will keep for a week this way in the refrigerator. They are always ready for salads.

YOUR PROBLEMS

By Ann Landers

DEAR ANN: Our apartment is right next to the laundry room. There is a rule that no tenant may wash after 9:00 p.m. or before 8:00 a.m. A sign to this effect is posted in the hall, but apparently the people in the building can't read.

I am sick and tired of being blasted out of bed at 6 in the morning by the sound of washing machines and dryers. As if this isn't bad enough, some of the tenants who work during the day do their laundry at midnight. One woman likes to wash at 2:00 a.m. She has insomnia and can't sleep so she doesn't want anyone else to sleep either.

I've complained to the landlord a dozen times but he doesn't live in the building. He says he can't hire a policeman to watch the laundry room. Don't tell me to move. I like my apartment and it's ideally located for my family. Please tell me what to do. — OUT OF STARCH

DEAR OUT OF STARCH: One of the oldest inventions known to civilized man is the lock and key. I suggest you look into it. Tell your landlord you will be happy to lock up the laundry room at 9:00 p.m. and unlock it at 8:00 a.m. Since it is next to your apartment, this should be a simple matter.

When you are away on vacation or out for the evening you could leave the room open and let the people wash at whatever crazy hour suits them.

DEAR ANN: I'm married and have four children. My problem is my husband. I've tried everything I know of to please him but he's never satisfied.

He wants me to play the violin, the flute, sing in the church choir, teach Bible school, keep the house spotless, wash, iron and cook, take care of the lawn, feed the cat, dog and bird, and entertain his relatives every Sunday. Last night he said I should take a full-time job because we could use the money.

I had pneumonia five months ago and never did get my strength back. The doctor says I'm trying to do too much. When I ask Oswald to give me a hand he sits there and reads the paper. He claims it's a woman's job to take care of the home and kids and that he doesn't ask me to come down to the plant and help him with HIS work. What can I say to a man like this? — WORN OUT

DEAR WORN OUT: You can tell Oswald that unless he gives you a hand he may have to hire a full-time housekeeper while you are in a hospital recovering from nervous exhaustion. Then he'll have to help her with the housework, feed the cat, dog and bird, and entertain his relatives every Sunday, in addition to his full-time job.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please settle an argument which has been going on for several days between my husband and me.

We had a baby boy last month. My husband is the father of another boy by a previous marriage. What I want to know is am I related to this other child?

My brother seems to think that I am not related to the first son. I think I am, but I don't know quite how. My brother says if I am related to that other child, then my husband's ex-wife is related to our child.

Please settle this argument once and for all. I am sick and tired of the bickering already. — PRETZELEATER

DEAR PRETZELEATER: You are not related to your husband's son by his previous marriage unless you legally adopt the boy. The same goes for your husband's ex-wife and your month-old son. Now you can all stop fighting!

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MISS DOROTHY JEAN COSTELLO

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old daughter came home from a baby-sitting job last night and told me the man of the house got "fresh" with her. (I mean really fresh. He tore the buttons off her blouse.) His wife wasn't home at the time. They are supposed to be nice people, Abby. She will never go into that house again, but I am worried about other young girls who might. If I tell my husband I'm afraid he'll go over there and push this man's teeth down her throat. Should I phone the wife? Please help me decide what to do. I think something should be done, but I don't know what.

DEAR FRANTIC: Tell your husband, but first make him promise he won't do anything impulsive like roughing up the old lecher. This is a man-to-man affair. Let your husband handle it.

DEAR ABBY: What can be done about a daughter who uses her mother as a servant? The mother is mine, and the daughter is my sister. This sister has been married and divorced. Mamma took her two children when one was 10 months old and the other was 2. She is raising them in her little home while my sister keeps her own apartment and "visits" the children when she feels like it. Sis is a "career" woman and is well paid. She gets alimony, too. This has been going on for three years. It is a disgrace. Mom doesn't say anything because she loves the children but it kills me to see her getting old and not being able to have a life of her own. She's a widow and will never by anything else if she doesn't get my sister to raise her own children. The situation grates me. What's the solution?

GRIPED

DEAR GRIPED: There is nothing you (or anyone) can do as long as your mother willingly assumes the responsibility of raising your sister's children. Mothers who permit their children to "use them as servants" must enjoy it, or they wouldn't put up with it.

DEAR ABBY: Now and then we are invited to a home for dinner. When we get there, most of the time the lady of the house is taking a bath and we sit and wait, which makes us feel very uncomfortable. I always thought you were supposed to be ready to receive your guests at the time you asked them to be there. Am I wrong? What would YOU do?

ON TIME BUT TOO EARLY
DEAR ABBY: I wouldn't "wait" for the same hostess twice. The second time I was invited, I'd arrive thirty minutes "late." If this proved too early, the next time I would make it an hour.

Approaching Marriage Is Announced

Both Miss Costello and Mr. Bradley are graduates of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston.

The bride-elect has chosen her neice, Miss Carmon Renee Costello, as flower girl and Mrs. Stewart Lynn Stover, sister of the prospective groom, to serve as matron of honor.

After their marriage, the couple will reside in Monroe.

Area Engineers Are Registered

NEW ORLEANS, La. (Special) — At the last meeting of the Louisiana State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors, which was held here on July 10, four Monroe area professional engineers were granted registration.

The were Lyle W. Ferguson of Monroe, mechanical; Freddie R. Hall of Monroe, chemical; Thomas M. Sayre Jr. of Rayville, Electrical; and Albert H. Davis of Junction City, Ark., civil.

ROMAN NIGHTS are made gayer for the modern Cleopatra in this drawstring-hooded shirt for in-out wear over a variety of pants. Draping easily when worn down for a flared collar effect, this paisley print variation by Pantino also creates a ruff effect when hood is up and drawstrings tightened. Sleeves are long with tucked flare at the wrist. Shirt has full button-front.

Teamster Hoffa Attacks Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Teamsters' President James R. Hoffa said Friday members of his union resent what he called President Kennedy's "meddling" in labor negotiations. He also said they believe Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy has a "police-state mentality."

Hoffa said he discovered these sentiments during a series of political education mass meetings he addressed during the past nine months.

Judge Harper Fines Several In City Court

Friday's docket in Monroe city court before Judge W. M. Harper, while relatively light, saw prosecution on a variety of charges. Though devoted largely to traffic cases, activity included trial on several counts of theft and aggravated battery.

Fined $300 and costs or seven months in jail for aggravated battery was 23 year old Negro Jimmie Burns of 125 Hipp Marx Alley. Three were convicted of theft, with Larry N. Causey, 18, of 317 Hudson Lane drawing a fine of $100 or 60 days. A six month compulsory sentence was handed down against Negro Orie Buck Williams, 28, 108 Sherry St., West Monroe, and a 60 day sentence was imposed on Robert J. Johnston, 28, 407 Arkansas.

Conviction of hit and run driving resulted in a $100 or 60 day fine against Bosco Negro James Steele, who also was fined for public drunkenness and $30 or 30 days for reckless driving. One other person drew a fine for public drunkenness.

Nolle prossed were charges of simple battery on Negro William Anderson, 811 S. 16th St.; of damage to property on 62 year old Negro Archie B. Woods, 1408 Standifer; and of reckless driving against Richard Schuster, 206 Clark St.

Fined for reckless driving was Negro John Wheatley Jr., 1314 Washington St., for speeding. Betty Swink, Route 5, box 20, West Monroe, and Byram Patterson, Negro, 3808 Dunlap. Joe Messina Jr., 31, 318 N. 6th St., was released on a peace bond on taking oath. Two persons were fined for running stop signs, as were one each for running a red light, overparking and following too closely.

ENTERS WORLD FAIR

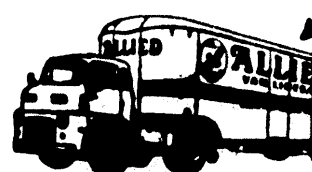

TOKYO (UPI)—The Japanese government Friday formally informed the U. S. State Department that Japan will participate in the 1964-65 New York World's Fair.

Yasuko Sato, minister for international trade and industry, told the Japanese Cabinet that $30 million yen ($1.6 million) will be set aside from the national budgets from fiscal 1962 to 1964 for the project.

Secret Defense Talks Conclude

LONDON (AP)—Secret defense talks between British and American scientists ended in London Friday night.

No communiqué was issued and there was no indication of what, if anything, had come out of the fuller evaluation they were understood to be making of new scientific data arising from the current series of U.S. underground nuclear tests.

This new information may, it is thought, have vital bearing on the nuclear test ban issue.

ADDRESSES NEW STATES

Lord Home Warns Of U.N.'s Troubles

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Lord Home warned Friday night that racialism and aggressive nationalism can kill the United Nations.

The British statesman left no doubt that he was addressing his warning to some newly independent African and Asian states, although he did not name them.

Home accused the Communist powers of letting loose "a tide of malice" in the U.N. General Assembly with the sole aim of winning a cheap dividend in power. Discussing this tactic, as one of the factors that could rock and maybe wreck the world body, Home told the General Council of the U.N. Association: "A small minority (in the assembly) subscribe to what they know to be wrong and dangerous and ally themselves with the Communists to do us maximum harm; while altogether too many of their fellow members allow themselves to be swept along, reluctantly perhaps and somewhat shamefaced, on this tide of malice."

The foreign secretary emphasized, however, that the British government unwaveringly supports the United Nations and its Charter and he said he had assured Acting Secretary-General U. Thant of this privately last week. Home's blast was the second by a senior British minister since Tuesday. On that day, R. A. Butler, minister for Central African affairs, assailed what he called the intemperance of some U.N. states which have been rapping Britain's colonial policies.

Home cited racialism and aggressive nationalism as two current international tendencies which, if imported into the United Nations, "will kill it."

Both influences, he said, are being aggravated by Red powers and both are beginning to show up in the world body.

The foreign secretary's prepared speech was circulated widely in advance by aides.

Asserting peace took a beating last year when the Security Council went some way to condone India's venture against Goa, Home said coldly: "The fact is that if the U.N. General Assembly compromises on essential principles and if it allows the use of force for expansionist national ends by certain nations in certain circumstances it is finished."

"The United Nations must make sure that this was a once-for-all error: for there are other claims which are backed by force."

"Who could agree to put an international force under the command of a U.N. assembly inspired by bias and prejudice?"

"There is a very real reason why member countries should ponder and take care the way they go."

In Monroe accidents, a six year old Bastrop youngster, Jimmy Ritchie, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Ritchie, 1001 Tulip St., sustained a large bruise on the forehead in a collision at North Fifth and Pine Streets. The child's mother, Mrs. Jean Nutt Ritchie, driving west on Pine, struck the car of Cecil H. Avery, 44, 3007 N. 12th St., West Monroe, going south on North Fifth. No charges were filed. Young Jimmy was taken briefly to the St. Francis Hospital by Mulhearn's ambulance.

Suffering slight injury, a small cut on the hand, in a crash at the corner of Louisville and Riverside Drive was Fred M. Hill Jr., 18, 224 Grayling Lane. Driving north on Riverside, just before 9 p.m., Hill's car collided with a vehicle driven by Louis Edgar Crawford, 53, of Winnsboro, Tex., going east on Louisville. Crawford was ticketed with running a red light.

In another Monroe traffic case, Negro Willie Jerome McFarland, 51, of 3601 Gayton St., was booked with driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, after being apprehended around 6:45 p.m. in the 1900 block of DeSard Street. He was also charged with reckless driving.

Meanwhile, all local officers were on the lookout for Negro Fred Hartwell, 34, of 1608 Grammont, who escaped from a city work detail around noon Friday in the Bernstein Park area. An alert also was called in the search for a blue, 1958 Pontiac, bearing Louisiana license 494-824, reported taken early in the day at Jonesboro.

Monroe police booked Audrey Jean Hall, an 18-year-old Negro of 1508 Adams St., for aggravated battery.

Booked in West Monroe for forgery and theft of a payroll check valued at $19.32, was Negro Johnny Hall, 18, 1204 N. 4th St., West Monroe.

Firemen Friday were called to the George Grocery and Service Station at the intersection of Washington and New Natchitoches Road near West Monroe where a late evening blaze wrought heavy damage and destroyed nearly all stock. Damage was estimated at about 70 per cent with only the west wall and gasoline pumps left virtually intact. Two fire trucks shuttled back and forth to refill their tanks and keep a constant stream of water on the conflagration. Smoke and water damage was heavy on grocery store. There was no personal injury.

West Monroe's Docket Light

Activity was light Friday in West Monroe municipal court, with Judge John McCormick presiding over a 12-case docket of offenses ranging from vagrancy to battery, both simple and aggravated.

He fined Negro Lillie Glover, 20, of 208 Short Lee St., $50 and costs or 30 days for aggravated battery, and 23 year old James Glover of the same address, $25 and costs or 30 days, for simple battery.

John T. McMurry, 41, of Birmingham, Ala., drew a 30 day sentence on conviction of vagrancy, while four others were fined for disturbing the peace and one each for running a red light and running a stop sign.

Fined for reckless driving were Roy E. Barnore, 19, of Bayville, and Negro Clement Lewis, 42, 1708 Bernstein Dr., Monroe, and for speeding, Thomas S. Gardner, 29, of 2303 1/2 Trenton St., West Monroe.

Officers Chosen By Postmasters

Homer Roark, West Monroe postmaster, has been re-elected secretary-treasurer and two other Louisiana postmasters have been named to offices by the Louisiana Chapter of the National Association of Postmasters.

Austin Smith, Rayville postmaster, was elected president of the state chapter, while Milford Green, Natchitoches postmaster, was named a vice president.

Election of officers came during the annual state convention held this week in Lake Charles.

Other new officers, all vice presidents, of the association are Mrs. Ollie McNeil, Center Point; Frank Cazanove, Hammond; Melvin Hester, Basile; and Alzee Autin, Galliano.

Both Roark and Smith plan to represent the state at the national convention of the National Association of Postmasters in Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 20 - Nov. 2.

The dispute involving prestige of the two bodies has blocked final passage of appropriations bills to run the government in the fiscal year which started July 1. All federal agencies now are operating under temporary stopgap authority.

Judge Harper Fines Several In City Court

Friday's docket in Monroe city court before Judge W. M. Harper, while relatively light, saw prosecution on a variety of charges. Though devoted largely to traffic cases, activity included trial on several counts of theft and aggravated battery.

Fined $350 and costs or seven months in jail for aggravated battery was 23 year old Negro Jimmie Burns of 125 Hipp Marx Alley. Three were convicted of theft, with Larry N. Causey, 18, of 317 Hudson Lane drawing a fine of $100 or 60 days. A six month compulsory sentence was handed down against Negro Orle Buck Williams, 26, 108 Sherry St., West Monroe, and a 60 day sentence was imposed on Robert J. Johnston, 38, 407 Arkansas.

Conviction of hit and run driving resulted in a $100 or 60 day fine against Bosco Negro James Steele, who also was fined for public drunkenness and $50 or 30 days for reckless driving. One other person drew a fine for public drunkenness.

Nolle prossed were charges of simple battery on Negro William Anderson, 811 S. 16th St.; of damage to property on 62 year old Negro Archie B. Woods, 1408 Standifer; and of reckless driving against Richard Schuster, 206 Clark St.

Fined for reckless driving was Negro John Wheatley Jr., 1314 Washington St., and for speeding, Betty Swink, Route 5, box 20, West Monroe, and Byram Patterson, Negro, 3808 Dunlap.

Friday The 13th Proves Undoing Of Nick Mancini

CHICAGO (UPI) — Friday the 13th proved to be the undoing of musician Nick Mancini.

Police said Mancini, 20, entered the Blind Spot Lounge early Friday, pulled out a .32-caliber pistol and announced a stickup. "Get going... get going," Mancini shouted to bartender Kenneth R. Miller, 25, police said. He ordered a customer, William Mitchell, 44, an iron worker, into a niche of the lounge and forced him to his knees.

Impatiently, the gunman called for money, and Miller complied, throwing bills and change across the floor. Mancini began picking up the money, and ordered Miller from behind the bar.

Handing the barkeeper a roll of tape, he ordered him to bind Mitchell. But then the Friday the 13th jinx stepped in.

Mitchell grabbed the gunman and was joined by Miller in the scuffle. Miller was conked several times on the head by Mancini, police said, while Mitchell suffered a bullet blaze on the forehead when the pistol went off. The gunman finally was overpowered and his pistol went flying across the lounge.

Det. Sam Greiner said Mancini got a "good going over, a good lacing. His head was bandaged like a Hindu priest."

After treatment at a hospital, Mancini was held on a charge of armed robbery.

Congress Feud Goes Unbroken

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members held up final action on the regular money bills to run the government. They'll meet again Monday afternoon to consider settlement terms again.

"Everybody is in good temper and good humor," Rep. Albert Thomas, D-Tex., told reporters after a closed meeting of five emissaries each from the two committees. Thomas reported progress was made.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of the Senate delegation, said "We certainly haven't lost any ground." He said a number of suggestions were made to end the dispute but declined to go into details.

Mrs. Calhoun Dies; Rites Set For Saturday

Mrs. P. P. Calhoun, 79, of 1102 Nat. St., West Monroe, died Friday afternoon in a local hospital after a long illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Saturday in the New Hope Baptist Church near Choudrant with the Rev. James B. White, pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church, officiating, assisted by the Rev. H. B. Stewart, New Hope pastor. Interment will be in the New Hope Cemetery under direction of Kilpatrick's Funeral Home of West Monroe.

The body will lie in state today at the Calhoun residence until about 2:30 p.m.

Surviving Mrs. Calhoun are a son, Otis L. Calhoun, Crossett, Ark.; a daughter, MRS. Elias A. Holtzclaw, Ruston; a brother, R. D. Roach, Choudrant; five sisters, Mrs. Pearl Hammons, Mrs. Laura A. Davis and Mrs. Nellie Calhoun, all of Choudrant, and Mrs. Mattie Norman, Monroe, and Mrs. Lizzie Graves, West Monroe; four grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Under the reported compromise, the conference meetings would have been presided over by the senator or House member with the longest service in his own branch of Congress.

One House member said the Senate delegation objected to this arrangement. He said an alternative compromise might be made by which the one who presides would be decided by his number of years in Congress. This would give the Senate an advantage, since many of its members served in the House before being elected to the Senate.

The dispute involving prestige of the two bodies has blocked final passage of appropriations bills to run the government in the fiscal year which started July 1. All federal agencies now are operating under temporary stopgap authority.

Officers Chosen By Postmasters

Homer Roark, West Monroe postmaster, has been re-elected secretary-treasurer and two other North Louisiana postmasters have been named to offices by the Louisiana Chapter of the National Association of Postmasters.

Austin Smith, Rayville postmaster, was elected president of the state chapter, while Milford Green, Natchitoches postmaster, was named a vice president.

Election of officers came during the annual state convention held this week in Lake Charles.

Other new officers, all vice presidents, of the association are Mrs. Ollie McNeil, Center Point; Frank Cazanove, Hammond; Melvin Hester, Basile; and Alzee Autin, Galliano.

Both Roark and Smith plan to represent the state at the national convention of the National Association of Postmasters in Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 28 - Nov. 2.
